

Dean Must Testify On Claim Of Linking Nixon To Coverup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III will be subpoenaed and required to testify before the Senate Watergate committee on his reported claim that he can link President Nixon to the scandal's coverup.

Dean will be granted immunity to gain his testimony if he invokes his privilege against self-incrimination.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., the committee chairman, said Tuesday he will not decide whether to call the President to testify "until some reason to call the President is known to exist." He added: "So far I have no information the President was personally involved."

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler was asked Tuesday whether a broad White House denial of presidential involvement in Watergate was intended to include a denial of awareness of any coverup.

The statement, issued Monday with Nixon's concurrence, had said "any suggestion that the President participated in any coverup activity or activities is untrue."

Ziegler said he could not go beyond the statement, but added the language "was not chosen to draw a distinction between participation and awareness."

The Watergate story continued to develop on Capitol Hill, in the Justice Department, in the Pentagon papers trial in Los Angeles, the State Department and in the federal courthouse in Washington.

There were these other developments:

—The judge in the Pentagon papers' trial indicated he may order a full-scale hearing into Watergate links in the case, a day after he disclosed E. Howard Hunt's grand jury testimony that presidential aide Charles W. Colson assigned Hunt to doctor cablegrams. The forgeries were designed to tie President John F. Kennedy to the assassination of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem.

—The State Department confirmed Hunt was given access in September 1971 to cables dealing with Vietnam. Press officer Charles W. Bray said the cables of traffic to and from Saigon were provided to Hunt at the request of David R. Young Jr., another Watergate figure who served on the staffs of foreign policy adviser Henry Kissinger and White House domestic aide John D. Ehrlichman.

—Young, who with Egil "Bud" Krogh supervised Hunt and Liddy's investigation of the Pentagon papers leaks, was interviewed Tuesday by federal prosecutors, apparently in preparation for an appearance before the grand jury. Hunt has said their White House assignment led to the burglary of the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

—Krogh was reported under intense pressure to resign as undersecretary of transportation because of his admitted role in the Pentagon papers burglary. He has been on indefinite leave since his name first surfaced in connection with the break-in. The pressure, sources said, is coming from Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brinegar.

—Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., the Marine Corps commandant who was deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency in 1971, cut short a European visit to give an affidavit about the CIA's role in the Ellsberg psychiatrist burglary. There has been published allegations Cushman authorized use of CIA equipment in the burglary, in violation of the law that bars the agency from operations in the United States.

—Sen. Harold Hughes, D-Iowa, told a Senate subcommittee hearing he is convinced the CIA's top officials didn't know about the agency's involvement

—It was disclosed in federal court that the Nixon re-election committee's accounting firm cashed 11 campaign contribution checks and returned the money to the committee. An earlier case of checks into-cash involved $114,000 which passed through the Miami back account of conspirator Barker.

—Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., introduced a resolution intended to force the White House to give any special Watergate prosecutor final authority over grand jury proceedings, subpoenas, framing indictments, initiating prosecution and seeking grants of immunity and final authority over a staff answerable only to him. Without such assurances, Stevenson said, the special prosecutor promised by Atty. Gen. designate Elliot L. Richardson would be "independent in name only."

Siege Of Wounded Knee Ends

County Acts ...

Burial Fee Hiked $300

The Lancaster County Board of Welfare Tuesday accepted the recommendation of Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert to increase the allowance for county adult burials from $200 to $500.

He explained that there had been no change in the allowance since January, 1964, and so he had the funeral directors of the county submit what they consider actual cost for a county burial which came to $447.

Trabert said that he felt that there should be an allowance for some small profit over and above the actual cost so he was recommending the figure of $500.

According to Trabert, the county burials, in the past have not included a cement vault but a wood box which cost $50 was provided.

For an added $10, the cement vault can be provided so the deceased may be buried anywhere in the cemetery and not be limited to the pauper's area, he said.

Also included in the revised cost are newspaper notices, a minister and visitation which amounts to about $57 additional.

Trabert said that the directors also felt that the county should provide chapel services if the deceased have friends and relatives adding another $125 bringing the total to $447.

He indicated that he didn't think the increase would amount to more than $1,000 additional annual cost to the county since a considerable amount of the burial cost is reimbursed from social security.

Water Pollution Control Money Ordered Freed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge Tuesday ordered the government to make $6 billion in impounded water pollution control funds available to the states.

Federal District Judge Oliver Gasch, in a suit brought by the city of New York, ordered the Environmental Protection Agency to make available to the states and municipalities the full amount appropriated under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972.

The order means municipalities can apply for up to $5 billion in water pollution funds in fiscal year 1973 and up to $6 billion during fiscal 1974.

The government issued regulations last December making available only $2 billion during the 1973 fiscal year and $3 billion during fiscal 1974.

"The language of the pertinent sections of the act," Gasch said in his 20-page opinion, "read in the light of their legislative history, clearly indicates the intent of Congress to require the administrator (of the EPA) to allot at the appropriate times the full sums authorized."

"Hence this court has no choice other than to declare that the act requires the administrator to allot among the states $5 billion for fiscal year 1973 and $6 billion for fiscal year 1974."

Student Killed In Cycle Crash

A 22-year-old University of Nebraska-Lincoln student was killed Tuesday night when the motorcycle he was riding went out of control and struck a tree two blocks west of Folsom and Pioneer, according to Lancaster County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the man was heading into town when he lost control of his motorcycle on a curve. Deputies said the man was wearing a helmet but the strap broke and the helmet flew off.

The victim was identified by Deputy Lancaster County Atty. Patrick O'Brien as Kenneth Mendenhall, who lived at 1411 E. but listed his home town as Ogallala.

Supplemental Budget Bill Advanced

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer
The Legislature's Appropriations Committee Tuesday sent to the floor a bill containing Gov. J. James Exon's requested increases in his original operational budget bill for fiscal 1973-74.

But first the committee wiped from the supplemental appropriations request two recommended budget decreases which would have fixed the governor's net budget increase at a total which exactly matched his original proposed hike of $366,105.

As amended by the committee, the supplemental budget bill, LB582, would increase the general fund portion of the operational budget by $607,274. Exon had recommended $241,169 in budget decreases for the Department of Public Welfare and the Department of Public Institutions to hold the net increase at $366,105.

Several members of the committee suggested that represented budget "juggling" by the governor.

Under questioning from committee members, Department of Administrative Services budget aide Don Leuenberger said matching decreases of exactly $241,169 represented some "sleight of hand judgment."

But DAS budget officer John Jacobson hastened to assure the committee that the decreases are as justified as the proposed increases.

A $158,570 cut in funding for the program of aid to aged, blind and dependent persons is based on a reduction in the number of recipients, both Leuenberger and Jacobson said.

And a proposed $82,599 reduction in funding for the three regional mental health centers is based on current experience indicating a smaller patient case load than originally anticipated, the committee was told.

When Sen. Dave Stahmer of Omaha chided Jacobson about sleight of hand budgeting, "to quote the governor's staff," Jacobson jokingly suggested that Stahmer was quoting a past member of the governor's staff. LB582 includes $366,105 in funding increases originally requested by the governor for the Department of Health, the University of Nebraska Medical Center, the state employees retirement fund and the Supreme Court.

Other additions totaling $241,169 affect 10 agencies.

Without the two budget decreases proposed by Exon, the bill cleared the committee on a 7-1 vote, with Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln dissenting.

Sent to the floor on an 8-0 vote was a deficit appropriations bill for fiscal 1972-73, which includes general fund operational budget figures totaling some $600,000 and relatively minor changes in the capital construction budget. The deficit bill LB581, sponsored by the governor, includes $103,932 to meet a tuition deficit at the University of Nebraska at Omaha but no deficit tuition funding for NU's Lincoln campus.

Other major items are $275,000 for the new county court system and $163,932 to meet costs associated with the Library Commission's move from the Statehouse.

Jacobson said some budget deficits are preferable to budget surpluses for agencies, indicating the state is budgeting tightly rather than loosely.

And a supplemental budget filling in gaps in the original operational budget request for fiscal 1973-74 is understandable, he suggested.

"It would be most unrealistic to expect no changes are needed in a budget bill written last January," he said.

In other action, Sen. Jules Burbach of Crofton formally requested the committee to recommend $867,300 in funding for access roads to recreation areas.

Burbach told the committee he will also ask the Legislature to require the issuance of $10 million in highway bonds with optional authority to issue an additional $5 million.

Writing Test Results Unimpressive

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

An assessment of the writing ability of Lincoln Public School students, when compared with national results in the same exercise, shows that most Lincoln youngsters did no better than average in overall ability to communicate in a school-type essay.

The assessment also indicated that Lincoln pupils made about the same number of mechanical errors as did students nationally.

The results suggest "that we should review our writing program to see how much emphasis is placed on specific types of writing for particular audiences," Associate Supt. Ronald Brandt told the Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday.

The exercises, developed through a federally funded program known as National Assessment for Educational Progress, were administered during the school year from a random sample of 400 Lincoln students age 13 and 17.

In one exercise, students were asked to describe a "famous person" they admired. In the second, they were asked to describe a traffic accident from a diagram.

On the first exercise, most Lincoln students performed about the same, or in some instances a bit worse than students tested nationally.

In the second exercise, they scored considerably higher. Brandt said although the assessment generally showed more work needs to be done, he was pleased with some results.

For example, he noted, the Lincoln students whose essays were termed of "high quality" made very few mechanical errors.

Still he noted, there were few high-quality papers in Lincoln than in national percentages.

Brandt also said readers adjudged content of many of the papers as excellent, and he noted when given the specific task of describing a traffic accident the students here did very well.

But Brandt also said other results were disturbing since "we know our students as a whole are not average" when compared with other national scales.

We should therefore expect our students to perform better than average but they did not," he said.

Brandt did note, however, that Lincoln teachers' stress proofreading as a sensible approach to careful writing for scholarly purposes, and he said use of dictionaries and handbooks were prohibited in the exercises.

Board member Ed Copple, after hearing the report, commended Brandt, English consultant Dorothy Young "and everyone involved for having the courage to have the assessment done and show it."

We intend to talk with the staff and figure out what can be done," said Brandt.

On another instructional matter, Brandt and Rudy Fredstrom, supervisor of guidance, said a recent evaluation of kindergarteners' performance indicates that pre-school inventory test scores a year ago provided a good indication of how the youngsters would perform in their first school year.

Federal Volleys Signal Retaking

... Occupants Underestimated

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Federal officers fired five volleys of gunshots from within Wounded Knee on Tuesday to signal the end of the 70-day siege of this historic hamlet. The occupation had resulted in the deaths of two insurgents and the wounding of nine persons, including two federal officers.

The U.S. marshals and FBI agents who had stood watch over the village since the Feb. 27 takeover, often trading gunshots with the militant Indians within, secured the four-square-mile area after the insurgents laid down their weapons.

"The U.S. marshals are celebrating the retaking of Wounded Knee," came the words over a police radio network after the volley of shots from a hillside near the Sacred Heart Roman Catholic church.

Interior Department Solicitor General Kent Frizzell said the government apparently underestimated the number still occupying the village. He said at a late afternoon news conference that 120 occupants were removed after the surrender. In addition, he said, about 35 persons surrendered to marshals in the last days of the siege and another 30 slipped past the federal cordon Saturday and Sunday nights, bringing to about 185 the number of persons in the village. At the height of the siege there were an estimated 300 insurgents.

Federal officers transported everyone from the village and said permanent residents would be allowed to return on Wednesday after a thorough search for weapons, explosives and "evidence of criminal activity."

Deputy Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. Richard Hellstrom complained that the agreement calling for dispossession of all weapons "has been violated. They just turned in a lot of old crap, old shotguns and rifles. The weapons turned in certainly were not all the weapons in there."

The American Indian Movement (AIM) led the takeover that cold winter night more than two months ago, but none of the AIM leaders was in Wounded Knee to surrender the village Tuesday. Three leaders had previously been arrested and charged and a fourth, Dennis Banks of Minneapolis, apparently slipped out of the village Sunday night, Frizzell said. He said Banks had promised to surrender at Rapid City, S.D., later this week.

The confrontation lasted until the very end.

Evacuation of Wounded Knee was delayed for more than an hour when two white men identified as members of the occupation force refused to surrender after driving to a federal roadblock. Frizzell said one of them, identified as Al Cooper, argued with the marshals over terms of his surrender and bond. The men locked themselves in their vehicle, Frizzell said.

The issue was resolved when counsel arrived to represent the two men.

Clyde Bellecourt, who was among the group based to Rapid City for bond hearings before a U.S. magistrate, told newsmen there that the government had already violated the peace agreement.

He said Bureau of Indian Affairs police should not have been permitted into the village until Wednesday, and said excessive bail was set for some of those arrested. He cited a $70,000 bond set for AIM leader Carter Camp as "outrageous."

The comprehensive pre-school inventory, begun last year, was done again this spring in all schools.

It tests children's physical abilities, such as hearing and speech, and includes a kindergarten readiness test.

Fredstrom said the inventory proved successful in identifying problems such as poor eyesight, and he also said it showed a high correlation between predicted ability and progress in kindergarten.

"The significant thing," he said, is that such pre-school tests can be used to "adjust the instructional program for the weaknesses" identified.

In other matters, the board decided to meet informally next Tuesday to hear goal and objective reports for three instructional programs and to get progress reports on negotiations with employ groups.

Disaster Aid Programs
Consolidation Requested

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon urged Congress Tuesday to consolidate federal disaster assistance programs and try harder to protect people and property against floods and other natural catastrophes before they occur.

His idea is to combine responsibility for the multi-billion-dollar problem under the Department of Housing and Urban Development. More of the cost would be shifted to state and local communities, and possibly to the victims themselves.

While we cannot fully control the occurrence and the impact of disasters, we must do all we can to prepare for them, to prevent them, and to mitigate and remedy their effects," Nixon said in his message.

There were 48 disasters in 1972, he said, including Tropical Storm Agnes, which ravaged seven states. Spring floods and tornadoes this year already have brought tragedy to many parts of the country.

The proposed Disaster Preparedness and Assistance Act would be intended to —Standardize benefits for disaster victims

—Improve execution of the assistance program

—Prevent the misuse of benefits

Strengthen preventive measures to minimize future losses.

—Increase the role of state and local governments in carrying out the disaster program.

It also would require the purchase of disaster insurance by individuals, businesses and even state and local governments where such insurance "is reasonably available, adequate and necessary as determined by the President."

Today few occupants of disaster-prone communities have such insurance.

He stressed the increased role of state and local government in the management of disaster funds, in making grants of up to $4,000 each to needy disaster victims removing debris and restoring streets, bridges, utilities and nonprofit educational and medical facilities.

Flood Stage Record Set

By The Associated Press

More rains in Northern states have halted the drying out process from the longest flood period in the Mississippi River's recorded history. The Southern Delta is still struggling to contain water accumulated from rains which fell weeks ago.

Unusually heavy spring rains have kept the river above flood stage at St. Louis for 59 days, breaking the 58-day record set in 1844.

"I wish we hadn't broken the record," said Gordon Davis, a flood weary employee at the Corps of Engineer Flood Control Center.

Two to three inches of rains reversed a week-long drop in river levels at St. Louis, and the National Weather Service reported Tuesday the river rose several inches overnight to 37.3 feet, or 7.3 feet above flood stage.

Auto Is Nose Down In Flood Waters

No one was injured in this auto as it resided nose down in flood waters on a Weld County road near Fort Lupton, Colo., as the South Platte River caused up to $50 million in damage. The flood crest moved downstream after causing heavy damage.

Sunday in the Denver area when a near-record 3.20 inches of rain fell. The flood waters are moving east in the South Platte toward the Nebraska border. The crest Tuesday was reported at Kersey, Colo., about 50 miles north of Denver.

Flash Flood Drowns
Two West Of Laramie

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — The bodies of two persons who drowned when a flash flood spilled across U. S. 30 about 28 miles west of here were discovered Tuesday by a railroad crew working to clean up a derailment also caused by the flood.

The body of Lee Runyan, 52, Wheatland, Wyo., was found about 75 yards from his car, and the body of his wife, Betty, 49, was discovered about one mile away.

Albany County Sheriff Harold Clay said a small earthenstock dam adjacent to the railroad property between Bosler and Rock River west of here was swollen by runoff water and broke late Monday night. He said the break washed out the tracks and sent a 4-foot wall of water over the highway.

The Runyans were headed from Wheatland to Hanna, Wyo., to visit relatives when their car was hit by the wall of water.

Early Tuesday morning, five diesel engines and 41 cars of an 84-car Union Pacific freight train left the track five miles east of Rock River near the dam site. A railroad spokesman said the flood had washed away the track where it crossed over a culvert.

Leonhardy's Ransom Is $80,000

Wed., May 9, 1973 The Lincoln Star 3

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — An $80,000 ransom was paid for the release of kidnapped U.S. Consul General Terrance G. Leonhardy, a Mexican official said Tuesday.

Gov. Alberto Orozco Romero said the money was delivered to the guerrilla kidnapers on Monday to meet a 5 p.m. EDT deadline. The ransom money was borrowed from a bank, and Leonhardy is responsible for repayment of the loan, Orozco Romero said.

The kidnapers apparently demanded the ransom money in a telephone call to the diplomat's wife.

The money was an additional

demand made by the guerrillas. The Mexican government met initial ransom demands of freedom and safe conduct to Cuba for 30 persons jailed in Mexico.

"Thank God," were the 58-year-old career diplomat's first words as he entered his home at the end of the three-day ordeal. He embraced his wife. He was tired, but in good health.

Leonhardy was released late Monday night and telephoned to his home from a tavern. A consulate car was sent to pick him up.

Mexican authorities launched a nationwide manhunt for his abductors following his release. A spokesman for the Mexican attorney general's office said federal, state and local police as well as political and secret police and the army are searching for the kidnapers.

Gov. Orozco Romero said he could not reveal all the details of the ransom payment. He said the money was borrowed from a local bank through the intervention of the state government.

"I hope the United States won't let the Leonhardys get stuck for the repayment of the loan because they actually are responsible for the money," said the Jalisco State governor.

The governor apologized for denying before Leonhardy's release that the kidnapers had made additional demands.

"When the kidnapers didn't keep their word after the first demands were met we had to take every precaution to protect the consul's life," he said. "Sometimes I had to lie."

Added to List

Added to the FBI's "Top Ten Fugitives" list was Herman Bell. He is being sought in connection with the slaying of two New York City police officers and a bank robbery.

Cease-Fire Asked In Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Suleiman Franjeh ordered an immediate cease-fire Tuesday night to end the savage fighting between army troops and Palestinian guerrillas, and he appealed to both sides to observe it.

Franjeh canceled air strikes that had pounded guerrilla positions throughout the day after new fighting broke out Monday night.

The president's order, broadcast by Radio Beirut, said the cease-fire "will give joint commissions a chance in the next half hour to start work on assuring the enforcement of a final cease-fire."

Franjeh acted after meeting with Arab mediators and envoys seeking to end the conflict which broke a shaky four-day truce.

The outbreak of fighting prompted the government to declare a state of emergency and censorship was imposed on news reports published at home and sent abroad.

Because of the censorship many details of developments in Lebanon were not clear.

Fighting this week and last week grew from mounting tensions between guerrillas and Lebanese following an Israeli attack on guerrilla bases and assassination of guerrilla leaders in Beirut last month.

Near self-rule for the Palestinians in Lebanon and the resulting attraction for Israeli reprisal is widely resented by the neutralist-minded Lebanese.

President Franjeh withheld accepting or refusing the resignation of Premier Amin Hafez, who only a day before the fighting began had worked out a coexistence agreement with the Palestinians.

Syria closed its border with Lebanon and warned it might intervene to support the Palestinians.

Nixon Effectiveness Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany condemned the Watergate conspiracy Tuesday as having subverted the democratic political process and questioned whether President Nixon can now govern effectively.

"The Watergate scandal not only damages the presidency in the midst of a presidential redesigning of our foreign relations; it also comes amid increasingly aggressive assertions of executive powers over our domestic affairs," Meany declared.

"The American people," he said, "cannot help but wonder whether such extraordinary powers can be wielded wisely, and for the common good, by an administration so steeped in scandal and twisted by privilege."

Meany called for appointment of an impartial commission untainted "in fact or appearance, by friendships or associations with leading figures in the administration" to investigate the Watergate case.

At a news conference during a two-day meeting of the federation's executive council, Meany refused to say if he thinks Nixon should resign.

One council member, President Joseph Beirne of the Communication Workers, had urged in a letter to Meany that the AFL-CIO determine whether Nixon should be asked to resign or impeached. But Meany indicated that Beirne's letter was not acted on.

The warm relations Meany had with the White House since he remained neutral in Nixon's re-election campaign last year have cooled considerably in recent months, owing mainly to organized labor's opposition to administration economic policies.

Until now, Meany had refrained from commenting on Watergate.

He said the administration has lost the confidence of a great many Americans, including the working man.

He added at one point that he still believes in the principle that no one is guilty until convicted.

Meany said corruption is no stranger to American politics but what made it "particularly outrageous" was the large-scale subversion of the democratic political process.

"It is indeed a subversion of political democracy when one party, because of its access to vast and excessive sums of money can exercise the advantages of wealth and power to pervert the Justice Department and the White House itself to undermine its opposition and cement its grip on the reins of government," Meany declared.

U.S. Chooses Mars Instrument Landing Sites

©The New York Times

Washington — American scientists have picked a site near the end of the Martian "Grand Canyon" and another near the fringe of that planet's northern polar cap for the first U.S. attempts to land instruments on Mars.

If the current schedule holds, the first of the two unmanned spacecraft will land July 4, 1976, on the surface of the red planet. The second spacecraft will touch down a few weeks later.

While the United States is celebrating its 200th birthday on Earth, the instrument package on Mars will begin a search for signs of water and signs of life on that planet.

Two Viking spacecraft are to be launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., between Aug. 11 and September 1975. The first is to reach Mars and go into orbit June 18, 1976, officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said.

The spacecraft will stay in Mars orbit for at least 10 days while scientists on Earth check its performance and the condition of the planned landing site.

Interest Rates Are Challenged In Idaho Suit

Boise, Idaho (AP) — A suit challenging the interest charged by J. C. Penney Co. on its revolving charge accounts has been filed in 4th District Court by three Boise couples.

The suit asked that anyone who carried a charge account at the stores in Idaho in the past five years be made eligible for refunds on alleged "usurious" interest rates.

In addition to charging that the interest was excessive, the three couples alleged that the firm wrongfully adds unpaid charges on revolving accounts to the principal each month.

Filing the suits were Richard and Mayme Green, Don and Dora Chance and Earnest and Salena Christiansen.

The suit asked for refunds, plus penalties as provided by Idaho's usury statute.

Halt Is Asked To N-Explosion

Washington (UPI) — Eleven conservation groups petitioned President Nixon Tuesday to halt an underground nuclear explosion in Colorado next week, saying the blast could contaminate the water supply for 27 million persons.

The explosion, scheduled for northwest Colorado's Piceance Basin May 17, is designed to free trapped supplies of natural gas.

Snakes Followed

Prague, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Moravia is experiencing an influx of snakes in the grass, but "enormous numbers" of snake-eating birds are following along to deal with them, tourists reported through a story in the youth daily Mlada Fronta.

Watergate 'McCarthyism' Denounced By Proxmire

Washington (UPI) — News stories suggesting without proof that President Nixon was implicated in the Watergate scandal were denounced on the Senate floor Tuesday as "demagoguery" and "McCarthyism at its worst."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a persistent critic of the President, criticized the press in a speech that was seconded by such diverse figures as Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott and Senate Democratic whip Robert C. Byrd.

"President Nixon is being tried, sentenced and executed by rumor and allegation," Proxmire said, referring to published reports of former White House counsel John W. Dean's charge that Nixon was directly involved in a Watergate coverup.

"As the senator who succeeded Joe McCarthy in the United States Senate, I find this kind of persecution and condemnation without trial McCarthyism at its worst," he said.

"Doesn't the President have the same simple right that every other American has, to be innocent until proven guilty?"

Ex-Sergeant Major Of Army Describes Rake-Offs, Bribes

Washington (AP) — A former sergeant major of the Army, convicted on conspiracy charges, testified Tuesday he helped rake off hundreds of thousands of dollars from service clubs by winning and dining anyone who might interfere with or investigate the operation.

Former Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge said so many high-ranking officers knew about the thefts from slot machines and kickbacks in Germany, Vietnam and the United States that the Army decided to suppress any investigation.

In testimony before a Senate government operations subcommittee, Wooldridge acknowledged being the highest-ranking person among about a dozen senior enlisted men who controlled illegal profits from service clubs for over a decade.

$303,000 RETURNED TO EASTERN

Jacksonville, Fla. (UPI) — The FBI announced the recovery Tuesday the entire $303,000 in extortion money paid to the hijacker of an Eastern Air Lines plane who bailed out over Honduras in May of last year.

William Alexander, special agent in charge of the Jacksonville FBI office, turned the money over to William R. Howard, senior vice president of industrial and personnel relations for Eastern, at a news conference.

The money was in $500 and $1,000 denominations, packed in a metal attache case. Alexander would not disclose how or where the money was recovered. He said the recovery was made after an investigation by the FBI and the Florida department of law enforcement.

The admitted and convicted hijacker was Frederick William Hahnemann, 49, of Easton, Pa. He is serving a life term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta for the May 5, 1972, hijacking of an Eastern jet liner en route from Washington, D.C. to Miami.

Gas Supplies Are Divided Under Program

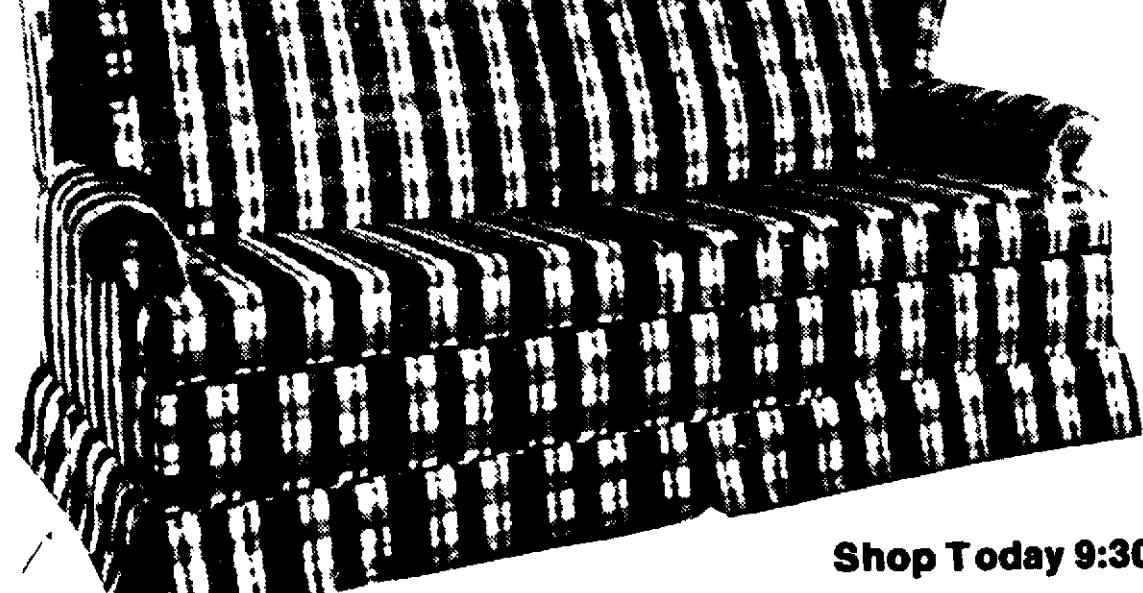

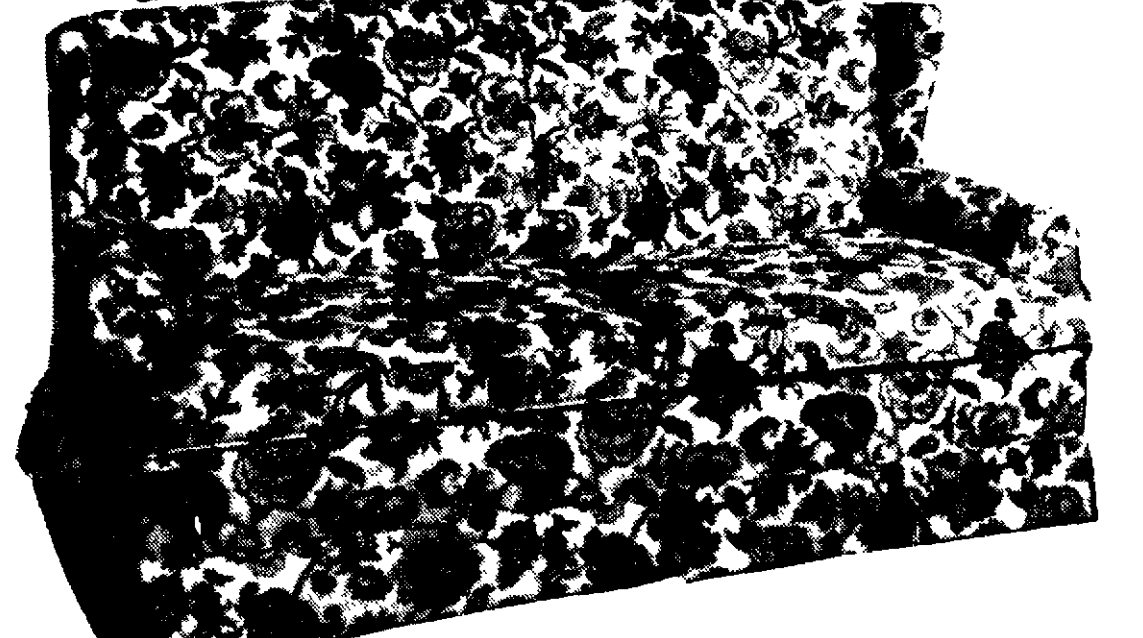

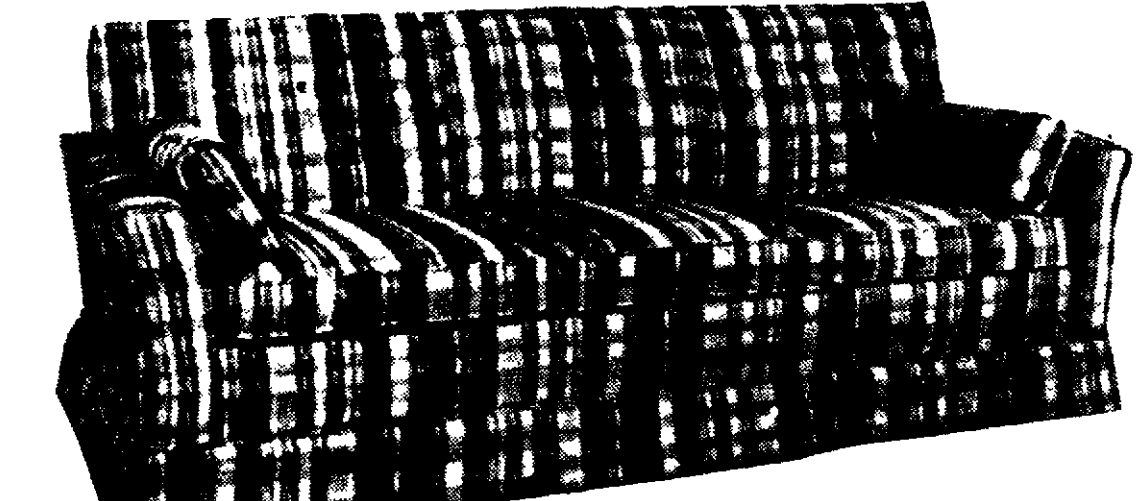

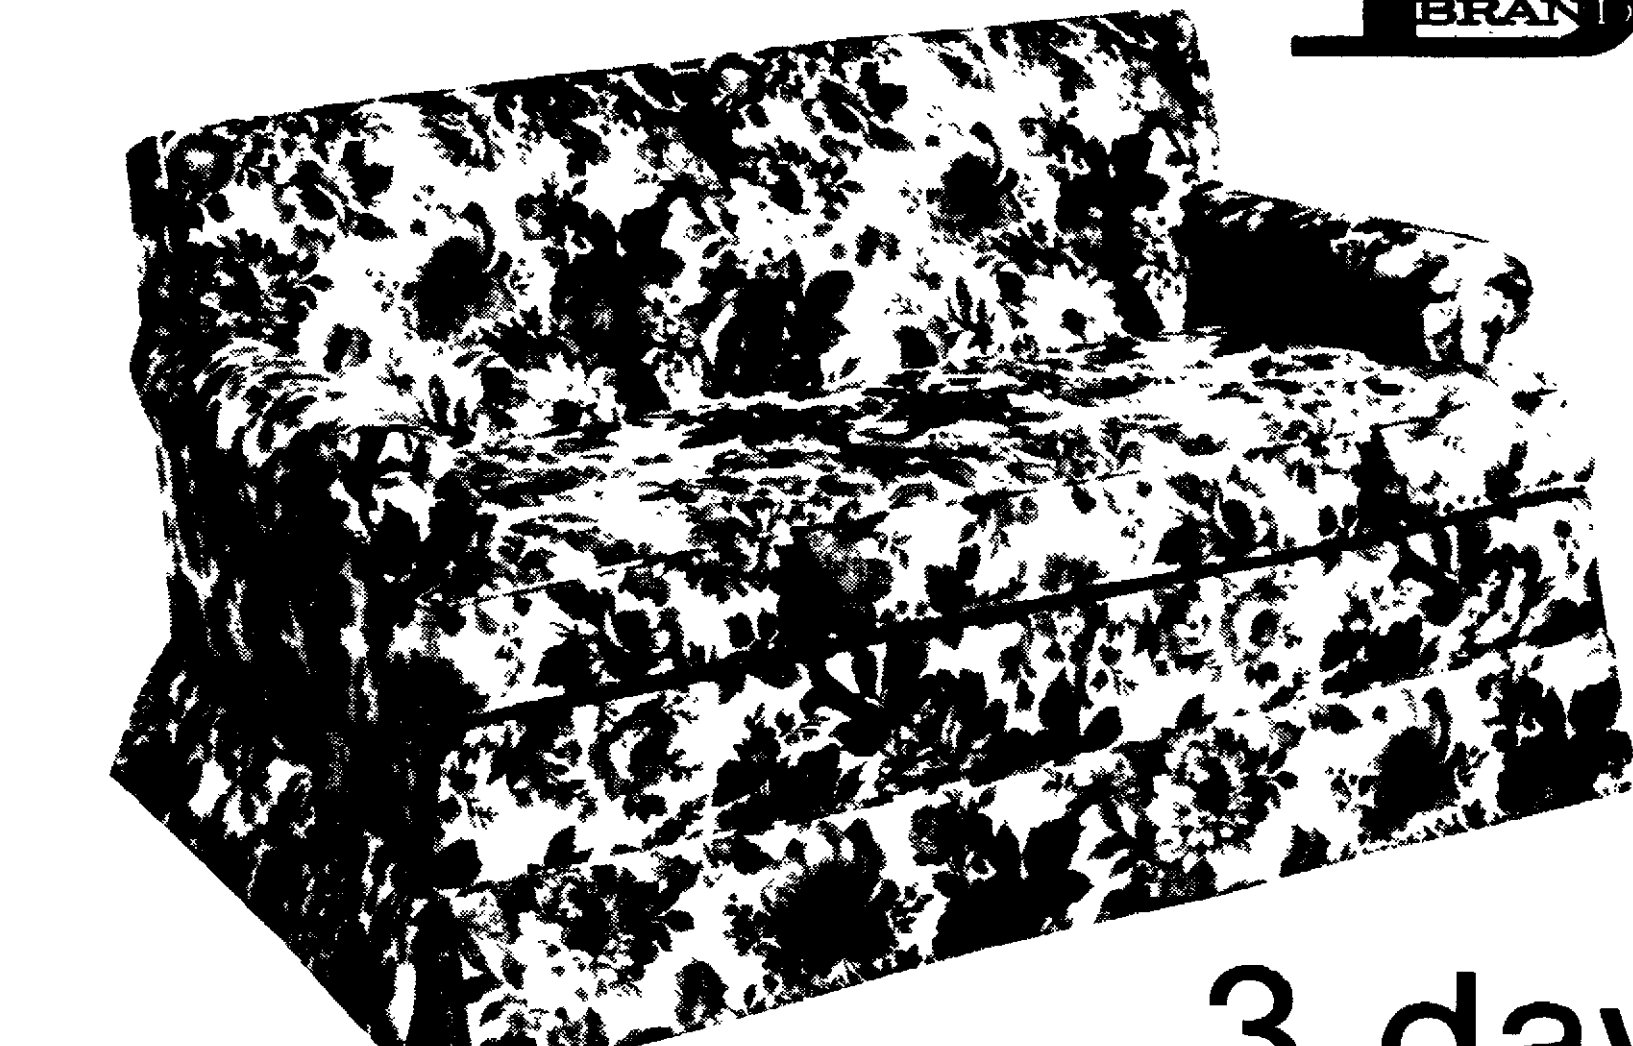

WASHINGTON (AP) — A program should be ready this week for dividing up gasoline supplies among refineries and distributors so as to "share the shortage," the administration said Tuesday.

A spokesman said the program is designed to make sure that small and independent operators receive a share of the gasoline supply. He said it would be voluntary at the start, but could be made mandatory later.

The spokesman, William E. Simon, deputy secretary of the treasury and chairman of the government's oil policy committee, also said he favors a temporary lowering of speed limits on the nation's highways as a way of conserving gasoline. Cars use less gas at slower speeds.

"A 50-mile-per-hour speed limit, if strongly enforced, would be a hell of a good idea," Simon said.

He said inventories of gasoline are 12 per cent below last year's levels, but said there will be no need for rationing at the retail level and that there will not be a "severe nationwide shortage."

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Important specific matters will be dominating the affairs of the new City Council when it assumes its responsibilities on May 14 but it will need to look, also, at at least one long-range situation. It is hoped the new council will seek a means of ending the divisiveness that has prevailed in the city in recent years.

While the voters turned down a charter amendment for district representation, which was a ballot proposal for the expression of this divisiveness, the plan did receive substantial support, especially from those areas of the city that seem to feel alienated from the mainstream of the community.

No doubt we will hear in the future of some other approach to district representation, perhaps nomination by district and election at large. These are worthy of consideration, of course, but are such schemes the real and best answer to things?

What we would hope is that the new council will find other ways to make all the citizens of Lincoln feel as though they are equal members of the community. A big step in this direction would be an effort to inform the community in regard to spending of public funds from a geographic point of view.

When you consider this matter carefully and objectively, the special privilege doctrine really does not hold much water. Reference has been made to the lack of park facilities in Northeast Lincoln but is this a valid criticism of city government?

Pioneers Park is southwest, which may serve south and east Lincoln more conveniently than northeast but it is intended as a city-wide park, not an area park. Additionally, Pioneers Park was given to the city, a fact which means it represents no deliberate effort to better serve one area than another.

Holmes Park is southeast, again not serving northeast too well from a geographic point of view. But Holmes, too, is a city rather than a regional park, intended for the enjoyment of everyone regardless of where he lives.

Additionally, the Holmes Park development was the product of a U.S. Corps of Engineers and local watershed improvement project. It was the opportunity for federal assistance that gave birth to Holmes, not a conscious effort to serve one area as against another.

Ultimately, Northeast Lincoln will have a major park in the area of the old University of Nebraska agronomy farm and this, too, is a matter of expediency as opposed to a deliberate effort to serve any one area. It will come into being as a result of the chance opportunity to acquire the land at a reasonable price and with federal assistance.

If you look at recreation centers, recreation programs, swimming pools, libraries and neighborhood parks, it is difficult to prove discrimination against any area of the city. And if you look at other city services such as law-enforcement, police protection, street cleaning, snow removal, etc., they are geared to population and need without regard to geography.

Northeast sometimes points with disdain to the fact that it does have the sewage disposal plant. But with a gravity flow system, where else could the plant be located? That location is a practical one, not a geographic one.

Such does not improve the smell of the plant at times but the point is that the situation does not involve discrimination against any area of the city. Such understanding is an on-going need, as well as a continuing concern for equality of spending as between all areas of the city.

The View From Britain On Watergate Scandal

LONDON — There is no rejoicing in England over America's present disfigurement. Instead, concern is growing that the Watergate scandal may affect Europe. The Observer spoke for many when it suggested that Watergate could "impair President Nixon's ability to conduct American foreign policy during a period of important and complex negotiations on many fronts."

The revelations, resignations and dismissals in Washington have been splashed all over the front pages of British papers in recent weeks. Moreover, the case has made the covers of such magazines as The Economist and The Spectator, and it has often been the lead news item on both BBC and ITV television. The warning implicit in this reporting is that "business as usual" may no longer be possible with a tainted administration. Writing in the Financial Times, Paul Lewis asserted that "Any decline in the personal authority of the executive must make its policies less convincing."

Henry Brandon, the American correspondent for the Sunday Times for 23 years, wrote: "I do not remember sensing a fear that the government may be rotten at the core." Most of the media coverage here has emphasized the extent of the Watergate corruption. There have been detailed explanations of the American process of impeachment.

Commentators who have been consistently critical of Nixon in the past reacted predictably. Peter Jenkins, writing in The Guardian, argued that Watergate should be viewed as "a crisis of the presidency," not merely of the Nixon administration. If the President manages to vindicate the motives of his implicated aides, Jenkins added, "It will not be the first time that a corrupt, arrogant and arbitrary ruler has subverted constitutional government and democratic institutions by identifying justice... with the will of the people."

William Shawcross of The New Statesman was equally vituperative. Watergate, he wrote, was connected by "the winning team that brought you the invasions of Laos and Cambodia, Kent State, self-help as a religion, cutbacks in almost every social program in the country, law and order, and a government more strictly ideological than any America has had for decades."

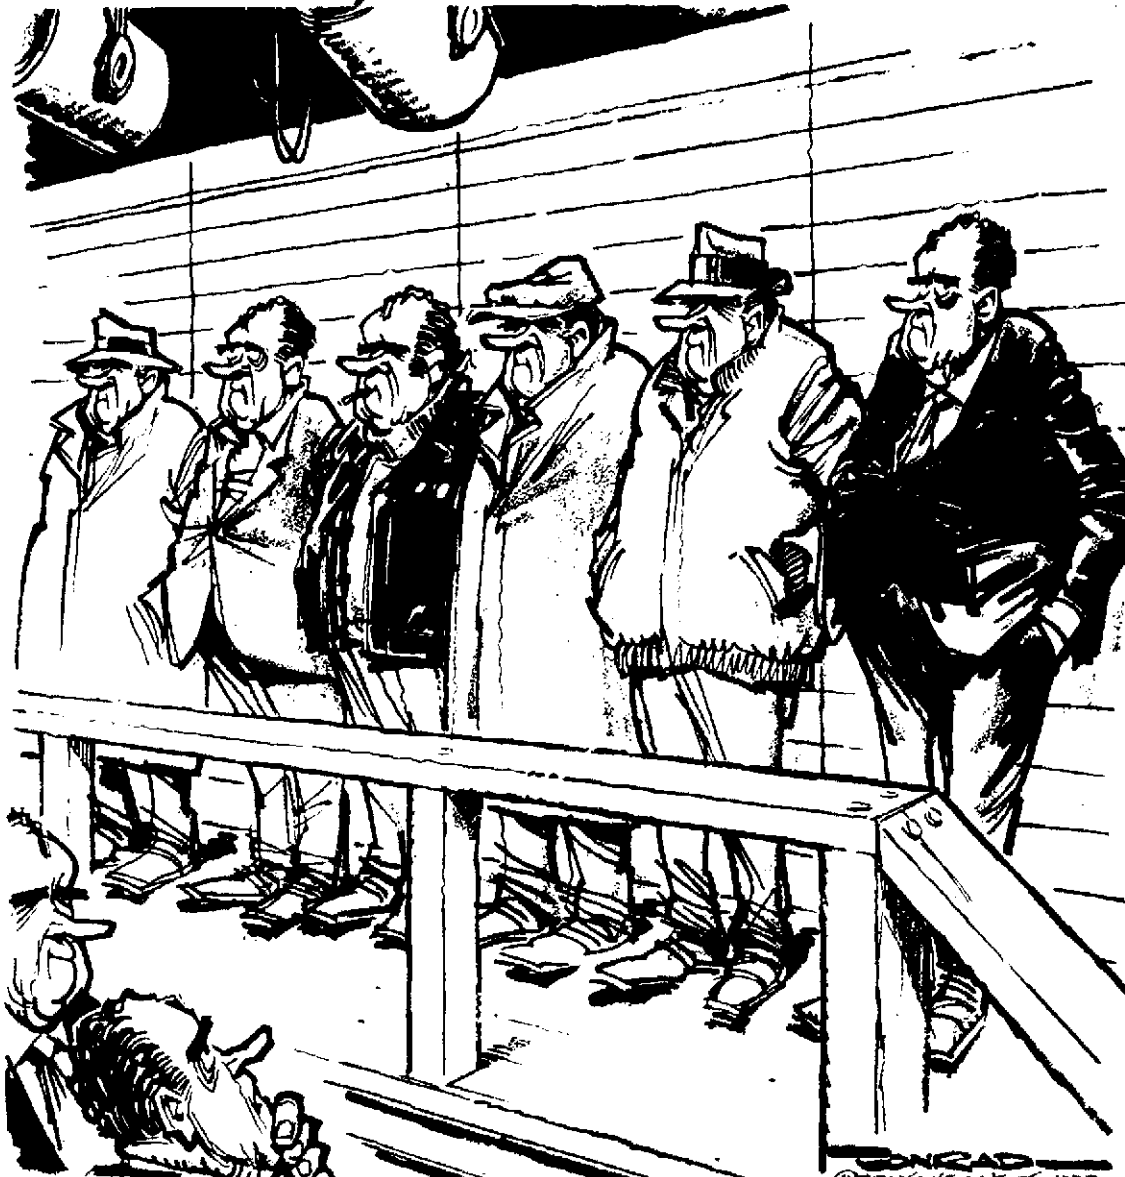

The Spectator, in a front-page editorial, declared that "lies and evasions and bribery have been piled on trespass and indiscretion." It added that the heat being generated by Watergate "is of a kind not essentially different from that generated in this country in the Sixties by the Profumo affair." John Protommo, a cabinet minister, incapacitated the last Macmillan government by lying to Parliament about his relationship with a prostitute, Christine Keeler.

The Observer has labeled the Watergate affair as "Washington's political scandal of the century." Still, the editors saw a positive side to the case: "Political skulduggery has happened in many countries but in few could it have been exposed as publicly as now in the U.S.," the newspaper stated.

In a cover story, The Economist observed that "Things have come to a strange pass in Washington when a vice president, standing even lower than is usual in the administration's hierarchy, publicly affirms his faith in the President's integrity."

It's Still Your Money

In discussing Mayor Schwartzkopf's proposed uses for Lincoln's third revenue sharing installment, several members of the City Council questioned the mayor's priorities and said "people programs," such as housing, should receive some of the funds. Singled out was the mayor's proposal that $200,000 of the $954,141 federal check be given to the Police Department to hire and equip 20 new officers. It was pointed out that in last budget, the department had requested only 14 additional officers and that eight were eventually approved.

Council input into a decision on how revenue sharing money is used will apparently have to wait until another check is forthcoming, however. Schwartzkopf pointed out that the report on how Lincoln plans to spend the money must be submitted to the Treasury Department by June 20 and he said delay was impossible. Councilman Merle Hale said, "Let's not hold this up because it (the list) doesn't include all the things it should." And Councilman Steve Cook suggested that since there is a limited amount of time to approve the third entitlement, that the mayor's list be approved as is, but that the council "closely scrutinize" future revenue sharing lists.

With the deadline at June 20th, it would appear that there is still time for further council consideration of the mayor's proposals after the public hearing on his proposed list next Monday. If there is not time, it indicates that both the mayor and the council are being frivolous about the spending of revenue sharing money. There should be ample time for the mayor to make his proposals and for council members to offer theirs.

Local officials should, after all, be as careful in deciding how to use federal revenue sharing money as they would be making out a budget which relies on city tax funds. The federal check is not to be lightly regarded. Spending money just for the sake of spending money, as opponents of the concept argue, is one of revenue sharing's worst faults.

On another issue, the council Monday voted by a 4-3 margin to lift the ban on parking pickups and motorized mobile homes on residential streets if they fit within the seven feet in width and 18 feet in length limitation.

The narrowness of the vote margin tells us that the concern for esthetics is not dead on the council, and that, of course, is a welcome sign.

But as a practical matter, lifting the ban makes sense. Pickups as second vehicles for families and camper trucks have become a way of life for many, and banning them from residential streets is discriminatory and can be a hardship. A minor one, but a hardship at any rate. The council in lifting the ban is keeping up with changing times.

What Caused Muskie's Demise?

One of the great mysteries of the 1972 presidential election campaign was the collapse of Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine as a serious contender for the Democratic nomination early in the primary season.

As the solid frontrunner since his stimulating showing as Hubert Humphrey's running mate four years earlier, Muskie's early demise was particularly hard to explain. He never got off the blocks.

His emotional defense of his wife in Manchester, New Hampshire, and his alleged sneering reference to the ancestry of certain citizens of Maine and northern New England were said to have cost him votes and the people's confidence. Likewise, the letter on Muskie campaign stationery charging opponents Humphrey and Jackson with sexual misconduct might have hurt him in the Florida primary, although George Wallace's big win there was never seriously doubted.

What it boiled down to was that a number of little things might have eroded Muskie's standing with Democratic voters. It is otherwise hard to explain how a man who had apparently been so popular earlier could turn out to be such a bomb.

The GOP subversion campaign must be looked at in this light. Nixon operatives had set out to influence the eventual choice of the Democratic nominee and they wanted McGovern, because they figured him the easiest to beat. Committee to Re-elect the President agent Donald Segretti has been indicted in connection with the Florida letter and Nixon people are said to have circulated the ethnic slur in New England attributed to Muskie. Other examples may yet come to light.

Sen. Muskie would be the last person to suggest that Republican subversion cost him the Democratic nomination. It didn't. But in tightly contested political races, such unethical practices could make a difference. That is why it is important that such impurities be purged from the process.

Phony CIA Credentials

WASHINGTON — The Watergate ringleaders apparently used phony credentials, which the Central Intelligence Agency authenticated, during their spying-sabotage operations against the Democrats.

Trusted sources have told us James McCord, while he was preparing to bug Democratic party headquarters, flashed CIA papers identifying himself as "George Russell." Those who checked with the CIA were assured "George Russell" was a legitimate employee.

Other sources close to the Watergate investigation say that G. Gordon Liddy may also have used the same "George Russell" alias. These sources claim the FBI originally thought the Watergate break-in was a CIA operation.

The CIA, however, refused to cooperate with the FBI investigation. A memo, intended for FBI eyes only, reported: "It is recalled we specifically were requested by the CIA not to interview... two CIA employees, and instructions were issued to WFO (Washington Field Office) to this effect. One of the individuals had already been interviewed, and the second was not interviewed per request of the CIA."

Another FBI memo, prepared for ex-White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman but never submitted to him, noted that Hunt and Liddy had "traveled extensively around the United States contacting former CIA employees for the purpose of setting up a security organization for the Republican Party dealing with 'political espionage.'"

Both E. Howard Hunt and James McCord are ex-CIA agents. The four Cubans caught with McCord in the Democratic lair, according to an FBI memo, had either "worked with or participated in CIA activities against the Castro government."

One of the Cubans, Bernard Barker, was reported to have told associates that he thought all along the Watergate operation had "the support of the Company." The "Company" is a term used by insiders to refer to the CIA.

When the FBI discovered Hunt was involved in the Watergate conspiracy, agent John Rule "telephonically contacted" presidential assistant Alexander P. Butterfield for an explanation. Our sources say he was the White House liaison man with the CIA. An FBI memo states that Butterfield informed Rule that "Hunt was used... on 'highly sensitive, confidential matters' about nine months ago."

The first impulse of President Nixon's campaign chiefs was to blame the Watergate bugging operation on the CIA. Both Hunt and McCord balked at this suggestion and sent back angry word that they wouldn't "sit still" for this. They have testified under oath that Watergate was not a CIA operation.

But there is growing evidence of some kind of CIA involvement.

Angry senators have charged that the White House had intervened with the National Transportation Safety Board to stop the release of reports that might embarrass the Nixon administration.

The board is supposed to be an independent agency which investigates air accidents and oversees the performance of the Federal Aviation Administration. Senate Commerce Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., believes air safety should be kept out of politics.

He got assurances from board chairman John H. Reed on March 25, 1971, that "we do not yield one iota on independence, believe me. The board is completely independent. We try to be gentlemen in working with (the White House), but there is no intrusion beyond that independence line and if there is any influence I will be the first one up here to speak to you and members of the committee."

Point of View

By JAMES S. BOWMAN
Lincoln, Neb.

Many commentators seem relieved that Richard Nixon has finally taken action on the Watergate affair and that it was done in time to avert damage to the office of the presidency (e.g., Star, May 1). While the President's actions are laudable and the details of the scandal incredible, attention to these short-term matters misses the fundamental problem which was raised by the incident.

The basic question does not revolve around the authority of the President himself, but rather concerns the nature of the institution of the presidency.

When discussing the presidency, most citizens mention with awe the mountainous work and dangerously demanding tasks that the chief executive has to cope with. Yet, this idea of an overburdened president is partly a myth. As George Reedy, Lyndon Johnson's press secretary, has pointed out in "Twilight of the Presidency," JFK and LBJ frequently stalked the White House looking for something to do. Mr. Nixon's roster of "Baseball Stars of the Century" and his frequent vacations tend to reinforce this viewpoint.

However, in misguided deference to the burdens of the presidency, we have established an institution that removes the President from the daily clash of egos and thereby acts as a buffer against reality. The mystique of the office encourages an environment of sycophancy and courtier politics among the President's assistants — the only individuals that he sees on a daily basis.

The Watergate incident is an example par excellence of this problem of presidential isolation. Assuming that the President had no prior knowledge of the event, how else is it explained that he allowed himself to be deceived by his most trusted advisors?

It would seem, in other words, that neither the internal nor external checks on the institution are working properly. The President is simply removed from the test of public debate and the advocacy process. In the case in point, Mr. Nixon did not realize the significance of the break-in for more than nine months! Thus, while Americans may elect men with political savvy to the presidency, the political sensitivity of these men becomes dulled by the office as it reduces them to political amateurs.

Observers of the presidency are not short on structural reforms for the office (for example, initiation of a British form of democracy), but most are politically infeasible. Still, there is a need to make the institution human again and this cannot be done by insulating and defying its occupant. Demystification of the office is necessary (Russell Baker's column, Star, May 1) in order to open and improve policymaking processes.

Some modest suggestions along these lines might include the following: make the legal functions of the office less imposing and less visible, institutionalize compliant procedures (President Truman had "citizen days" at the White House), improve presidential staff recruitment, and insure that outside advice (e.g., presidential advisory commissions) is taken seriously. Admittedly, these are not exactly earth-shaking reforms but they are changes that could be made with considerably more ease than more grandiose proposals.

In conclusion, the American system of government reposes on two premises: a government strong enough to act, yet not so strong as to abuse its power. To even the most casual observer, it is evident that something is now out of kilter. Whatever might have to be done, it is worthwhile to retell the tale about Ben Franklin when he returned from the Constitutional Convention.

"Well Mr. Franklin, what have you given us, a republic or a monarchy?" his landlady asked. "A republic — if you can keep it," he replied.

The Responsibility

Lincoln, Neb.

I found Mr. Stroud's letter of May 4 most interesting, particularly because this is 1973 and his views would seem more compatible with 1953. Mr. Stroud states he isn't "interested in Watergate because there isn't one per cent of us who know what it's all about." Apparently he hasn't been reading the newspapers. There is every indication that members of Nixon's administration are guilty of criminal acts and engaged with others in an espionage campaign against the Democratic party. Though President Nixon must remain innocent until proven guilty, he has already accepted "the responsibility" for this sordid mess. President Nixon is guilty, however, of criminal acts against Daniel Ellsberg by ordering the illegal investigation that subsequently led Hunt and Liddy to burglarize an office and thereby invade Ellsberg's privacy.

Mr. Stroud's account of a world take-over by "the communists" is frightening in at least one respect — that some people still think communism is monolithic (even Nixon doesn't believe that) — but is more amusing in retrospect. Never has the "Domino Theory" been presented in a more ludicrous form. There is no need to wonder where the hippies and draft-evaders would "hide," obviously they would be actively aiding the enemy.

The Vietnam war which is still going on, which Mr. Stroud refers to as "mangling in South Asia," is indeed, as he implies, one major source of division in this country. Some Americans still believe killing is morally wrong and refuse to tolerate the lies of their presidents.

America is one of the few countries in the world that besides perpetrating crimes against its own people extends this "courtesy" to other peoples, as well. As Americans, Mr. Stroud and I must both accept the responsibility for the actions of our government. I, for one, am becoming increasingly uncomfortable, knowing I am responsible for the crimes my government commits daily.

Article On Johnny

Lincoln, Neb.

Sports Editor Hal Brown's article appearing in the April 27 Star was beautifully written and certainly told the truth. I have attended football games for some 30 years and Johnny R. was the most exciting player I have ever been privileged to watch on the field.

As to his being a bad driver, how about a certain coach who has had many citations for speeding? And what did the judge say? He laughed it off.

The way Johnny was treated by Boys Town was unexcusable. They have so much money, they don't know how to spend it. It took the newspapers to ferret this out and the alibis Boys Town gave left a great deal unsaid.

I also go along with Mr. Brown's thinking on Mel Mains. I had one encounter with him over the telephone when I was employed and had been asked to call the station. He was discourteous and curt. I don't even like to watch him on TV. He has an over-abundance of egotism.

Thanks for fine reporting.

Watergate Hearings

Lincoln, Neb.

The Senate Watergate hearings later this month promise to be a major historical event, but we may not get a chance to follow them on local television. Politics is not the main issue; President Nixon himself has called for broad television coverage.

I fear the commercial broadcasters are being influenced by the profit motive and the hearings would produce little ad revenue. In the past the networks have been reluctant to cancel the lucrative daytime shows. This, in spite of the fact that the broadcast industry enjoys huge profits from what are, after all, our public airways.

SOD-BUSTER

The Public Broadcasting System will probably cover the hearings, but I was told on the phone that the Nebraska ETV network is not planning at present to carry the broadcasts. This might well change their minds if there were expressions of viewer interest.

Some people would no doubt prefer to watch their accustomed soap operas and reruns. But live broadcast of the hearings would be television at its best. It would be the actual drama of unfolding history. The manipulative practices of some arrogant men would be exposed but, more important, we would see the courage and integrity of some other men and we would witness the values of our open system of government vindicated. This would be more important (and better of entertainment) than "Hollywood Squares," "As The World Turns," and the ad dollars they generate.

When I was postmaster in Yamhill, Oregon, my nearest neighbor was Curt Goodrich. One Sunday he was out in his front yard pruning rosebushes. I went over to visit with him. He was a very well educated man and I could always learn something by talking with him. His old dog, Sandy, was with him. Soon another neighbor came to visit, too. He was noted for his profane and dirty talk. Curt told Sandy to go into the house.

The fellow said, "Why send him to the house? He isn't bothering me."

Curt replied, "I know, but I don't want him to hear your kind of talk."

The man soon moved on.

Mother's Day — and I never knew mine. She died several months after my birth.

Often I used to dream of what she would be like — soft brown hair, eyes of blue, light sunny laughter. Had I been older, I could not have faced tomorrow without her smile, her fingertips upon my cheek in tender caress.

So mother has gone away but I feel her ever near me, her hand holding mine as we walk through a summer rain or the softly falling snow.

Hidden Patrol Cars Ban Removed

By The Associated Press
Threatened with a gubernatorial veto, the Nebraska Legislature changed its position and said it'll be okay for patrol cars to conceal themselves while making radar checks on motorists.

By a 29-10 vote, lawmakers removed from a pending bill a Sen. Terry Carpenter amendment adopted earlier.

The amendment had been applied to LB45, a voluminous measure rewriting Nebraska's rules of the road.

The removal of the Carpenter amendment occurred on select file, second floor stage of bill advancement.

The move developed then to hold LB45 in that position until next year, after several questions were raised about the bill's details. Sen. William R. Skarda Jr. of Omaha moved to shelve the bill until Feb. 1 of next year but the motion was voted down 22-19.

Carpenter's concealed patrol car amendment had said "All state patrol vehicles equipped and used in electronic checking of the speed of any motor vehicle shall be clearly visible to all traffic approaching the motor vehicle from either direction."

Gov. J. James Exon has described it as "ridiculous legislation."

Sen. George Syas of Omaha reported that Exon planned to veto the bill were it passed with the Carpenter amendment.

Sen. Herb Nore of Genoa said the amendment "is a sort of joke over the state." He said it should be removed "before it does more damage to our image."

The disintegration of relations between Carpenter, a Democrat, and the Democratic governor, was indicated by a speech given by Carpenter after the removal of his amendment.

Referring to a newspaper account which said Exon took a "swipe" at Carpenter for his amendment, Carpenter said "I'll trade him swipe for swipe. Before long he'll wish he never heard of the name of Senator Carpenter."

"If you are apprehensive every time the governor says he is going to veto a bill, you'll be in a state of shock all the time," said Carpenter.

How senators voted on removing the Carpenter amendment from LB45:

For (29)—Anderson, Barnett, Burbach, Clark, DeCamp, Dickinson, Epke, Fowler, Goodrich, Hasebrook, Johnson, Kelly, Kennedy, Kremer, Richard Lewis, Luedtke, Maresh, Marsh, Nore, Rashnussen, Richendier, Savage, Snyder, Stahmer, Stromer, Stull, Syas, Warner, Wiltse.

Against (10)—Carpenter, Cal Carsten, Cavanaugh, Chambers, Frank Lewis, Mahoney, Marvel, Schmit, Skarda, Waldron.

Absent or not voting (10)—Fred Carstens, Duis, Fellman, Keyes, Kime, Moylan, Murphy, Proud, Simpson, Whitney.

Flood Potential Is Discussed

By United Press International
The Legislature began discussing the potential flood situation along the Platte Rivers but ended up on the favorite topic of the session — appropriations bills.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff brought up the subject of flooding and suggested the governor's emergency fund needed a boost so it could handle such situations.

"We don't have the money right now to do anything but worry," he said.

Betty Furness Hits Reporters As Inadequate

New York (UPI) — Consumer Affairs Commissioner Betty Furness said business reporters do an inadequate job of digging up and covering stories of consumer fraud and deception.

In remarks prepared for a speech to a meeting of the Society of American Business Writers, Commissioner Furness said "... most of the time, the press just doesn't let you know when the local supermarket picks your pocket."

She said there is too little of the type of reporting that has resulted in the removal of potentially harmful products from the marketplace.

He said if his motion was adopted, the lawmakers could then consider increasing the size of the emergency fund.

Stahmer also said the move would allow the Legislature to pass other appropriation bills which have been introduced at least up to the total spending limit recommended by the governor.

Budget Cut
The Budget Committee, he said, has tentatively agreed to cut Exon's construction budget by about $6 million, which could be used for other purposes.

In response to claims the move was premature because the Budget Committee has not taken final action on the construction budget, Stahmer withdrew his motion.

But Carpenter renewed it adding he still wouldn't vote for it even though it became his motion.

Later, however, he agreed to withhold his motion until Thursday to allow time for the Budget Committee to act and exact dollars totals are available.

Audit Said 'Petty Partisan Politics'

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Director of Administrative Services Gus Lieske Tuesday dismissed criticism of his agency contained in a recent audit as being "nit-picky" and motivated by "petty partisan politics."

In a letter to Omaha Sen. Richard Fellman, Lieske said the audit failed to find any misappropriations or illegal activities in DAS from Jan. 1, 1971 through June 30, 1972, and instead concentrated on turning the Exon administration's management of DAS into a political football.

The audit, Lieske said, recommended changes in minor procedural matters.

18 Deficiencies

The audit, completed early in April, faulted DAS' handling of uncollectable accounts, annual fiscal reports, vouchers, recording of deposits and payments, surplus property inventory and state parking lots. A total of 18 deficiencies were outlined.

Shortly after State Auditor Ray A.C. Johnson, a Republican, released the audit, a spokesman for the State Republican Party criticized the Exon administration and DAS operations. The State Republican Party has also been behind LB452, which would take away much of the governor's control over DAS.

Lieske charged that Johnson is "at times primarily interested in publicity."

Shortly after he took office he released to the press an audit which had a substantial dollar amount of questioned expenditures; however, when the audit was settled only a small percentage of the expenditures which he questioned were actually improper.

'Unusually Detailed'

Implying that inter-departmental jealousy exists, Lieske accused the auditor's office of always being "unusually detailed" in their examinations of DAS.

"Although there is a new auditor, it appears that the auditor's office has never adjusted to the fact that there is a Department of Administrative Services," he said.

"As I indicated earlier, when we initially received the report we felt it was biased. I think I could go further to say that it is just another example of petty partisan politics being played. Evidence, I think, of the partisan nature of the attack is that one day after the auditor's report was released to the press, a Republican Party official released the results of a presumed 18-month investigation of the DAS covering the same period as the auditor's report.

'Totally Erroneous'

"We have not at any time seen any officials from the Republican Party, however, we have seen officials from the auditor's office and can only conclude that the investigation was made either by the auditor or by certain legislators. The report by the Republican official was totally erroneous, but I won't go into that at this time."

The two most significant recommendations made by the auditor regarding uncollectable accounts and the listing of investments in the annual fiscal report are questionable in light of accounting procedures and existing law, Lieske said.

"In closing, we found there were a large number of general statements in the audit, such as inadequate, inconsistent . . . which are made without proper definition, explanation or any supporting evidence. Obviously such statements are not useful in improving agency operations. . . . I hope that future audits will be made in a factual, actuarial and unbiased manner so that they can be of some assistance to us and other agencies," he said.

Police Bar Ownership Ban Survives Kill Try

By United Press International

The Legislature rejected an attempt to kill a proposed prohibition against ownership in liquor establishments on the part of law enforcement officers. Sen. Glenn Goodrich of Omaha was the only person who voted in favor of his kill motion on LB315 while 25 voted against him.

Goodrich offered the kill motion after he failed in an attempt to water down the prohibition slightly.

School Aid Stand Told By NSSBA

The Nebraska State School Boards Association (NSSBA) reported Tuesday it has consistently opposed spending controls when state aid to schools is increased, "but never to the point that this issue should prevent the granting of state aid to schools."

NSSBA executive director Ross H. Rasmussen issued the statement with reference to two pending legislative bills, LB172, which provides $20 million of additional school aid for next year, and LB472, a longer-range bill ultimately providing 50 per cent funding of school operations.

Rasmussen said the main NSSBA support has been for LB472, but that the association's officers and directors on March 17 reached no consensus "on the issue of spending restrictions as a price for state aid."

Thus, said Rasmussen, "the policy of NSSBA has been to inform legislators and others of the problems spending controls impose on school boards and the fact that school boards are prudent guardians of our tax dollars."

Retirement Age Change Is OKd

State employees will be forced to leave their jobs on reaching the age of 72 under terms of a bill passed 35-0 by the legislature and sent to Gov. J. J. Exon Tuesday.

The measure, LB55, retains 65 as the normal retirement age. But whereas present law permits an employee to remain on the job after 65 on a year-to-year basis without limit when agreed to by the employee and his department, LB55 makes retirement mandatory at 72.

The bill takes effect July 1, 1974.

Campaign Fund Limit Rejected

By The Associated Press
A bill backed by Democratic Gov. J. James Exon, limiting expenditures in political campaigns, was killed in the Legislature Tuesday.

Rejected 18-12 on general file, first stage of floor consideration, was Omaha Sen. Richard Fellman's LB310, which essentially would have prohibited state-level candidates from spending more than the office's salary in the primary, or double the salary in the general election.

For governor, LB310 would have meant a $25,000 limit in the primary, $50,000 in the general election. However, because the governor and lieutenant governor will be running as a team, the tandem figures would be $32,500 and $65,000, respectively. Fellman quoted official reports as disclosing that incumbent Republican Gov. Norbert Tiemann's campaign organization spent $133,000 in the primary and $108,000 in the general election in 1970, while the victorious Exon organization spent $28,000 in the primary and $29,000 in the general election.

The kill motion on LB310 came from Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, who called it "one of the silliest bills I ever read." Carpenter, who has had harsh words of late for Exon, a fellow Democrat, said the fact Exon favors the bill "is one reason I'm against it."

Fellman contended the Watergate scandal in Washington is a reflection of election campaign excesses, but Carpenter said Watergate reflects simply "dishonesty in government."

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, denouncing the bill, said it won't get rid of "bags of money" contributions which never get reported, but instead "would promote bad and crooked politics."

A related measure, Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner's LB267 awaits first round floor debate. It would stiffen requirements for reporting campaign contributions and spending.

Two Appointees Faces Rejection

Sen. Ramey C. Whitney of Chappell said Tuesday Gov. J. J. Exon has been informed the Legislature's Committee on Committees may not act favorably on two of his appointees.

Whitney said in trouble are the appointments of George Egernmayer of Omaha, an insurance and billboard advertising executive, and Kenneth Hilton of Cambridge, a farmer-stockman.

Egernmayer was named by Exon to the State Colleges Board of Trustees while Hilton was named to the State Motor Vehicle Industry Licensing Board.

Monday, a move was made by Sen. Gerald Stromer of Kearney to recommend that the full Legislature reject confirmation of Egernmayer. It failed but other committee members indicated they wouldn't go along with a confirmation recommendation either.

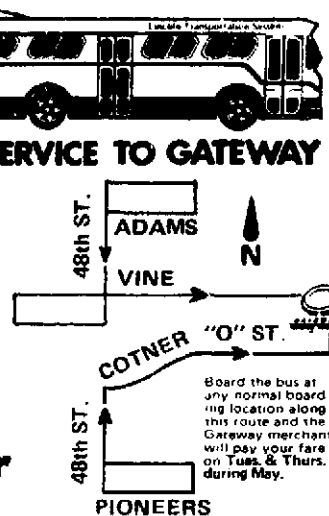

Hilton, according to Whitney, ran into trouble on his driving record. A transcript of his record showed speeding convictions and his reported failure to have a farm truck cleared through a state safety inspection.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Leo and Taurus, both fixed signs — stubborn and talented, determined and gifted and the meeting ground can be turned into a battle ground. But natives of these signs, which are in square or 90-degree aspects to each other, seem capable of recognizing the positive qualities each possesses. Their relationship has pitfalls but there also are life rats and survival is possible. Taurus and Leo grow by the encounter although growth can be a trying process.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You get results. Your endeavors leave imprint. Know it and don't be frivolous where emotions or money enter picture. Stick to principles. Adhere to your own style. Member of opposite sex plays key role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You finish special assignment. You may also find that a relationship may be reaching completion. Look ahead. Make plans which could result in greater self-sufficiency. Build for security. Check property values, take inventory.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You have more freedom of action. Journey could be on agenda. Strive to make friends, in new territory. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. If you ask questions answers now are likely to be obtained.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Money is much in picture. You seem able to make right contacts, to arrange conditions, to bring together persons who consummate a deal. Solid, sensible. Tendency toward refusing to make foolish compromise.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Cycle is such that you succeed through independence of thought, action. Wear bright colors. Emerge from any emotional shell. Get together with friends. Diversify. Travel is favored and so are new contracts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to understand one who is emotionally disturbed. Look for reasons for the way some persons act. Remember a time when you needed patient, tender loving care. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio might be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can do many things which, in recent past, were merely wishes. Key now is to analyze. Find what it is that really means something to you. Be selective. Gemini, Virgo individuals could play important roles. Accent necessary for change.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Accent is on achievement. Prestige rises. Goal is in sight and family member can aid in reaching it. Taurus, Libra persons are in picture. Accept challenge. You have more going for you now than is apparent on surface.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Good lunar aspect now coincides with long-distance communication, travel, fruitful study. Publish and advise. Reach for wider audience. Your imagination can be transformed into creative force.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Results are featured. Money, creativity are featured. Relationships, intensity. Nothing occurs halfway — it is all or nothing. Your individuality, unique style become valuable assets. Investment procedure is clarified.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Accent is on legal matters, partnerships, relations with public and marriage. Horizons are broadened. You can observe and learn. Some persons, who appeared indifferent, act in a more positive manner. Be receptive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Fresh start is indicated. You can rectify past mistakes. One who serves your interests requires more attention. Don't keep feelings a mystery. The more you express yourself now, the better for all concerned, including you.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are drawn to law, medicine, the arts. You are a battler for anything you so much do anything halfway — you either are all wrong or all right. October should be one of your most significant months of 1973. You seem constantly to attract persons born under Aries and Libra. During current cycle, you are learning valuable lesson, not all pleasant.

Garment Manufacturer Eyes Plant In Falls City

Falls City — A garment manufacturer identified only as a nationally known and very reputable firm has announced tentative plans to erect a 40,000-square-foot plant here.

The plans are contingent only upon the results of a May 17-19 labor survey. Mrs. Jo Bohrer, Chamber of Commerce manager, said she is confident the survey will be "more than successful" in enlisting a needed work force of 250, mostly women.

"We can only say at this point that the company is a very reputable one which has several plants in three states," said Mrs. Bohrer. "Everything hinges on the labor survey."

She added that the Chamber has been working with company officials for "only two weeks." The prospect was brought to the community by the State Department of Economic Development.

No definite site has been chosen for constructing the plant. However, Mrs. Bohrer said an industrial park in the southeast section of town is under consideration.

It is anticipated that a pilot operation will begin by the last of June, temporarily occupying the old armory building about to be vacated by the National Guard. The new plant, requiring an investment of at least $300,000 for the building alone, hopefully will be available by January 1974.

"The company is in a tremendous bind on production at the present time, so wants to begin operations as soon as possible," Mrs. Bohrer continued.

Although no specific goal has been established for the labor survey, Mrs. Bohrer said she antipates a sign-up of several hundred persons. The company has already been provided the names of more than 100 women who are factory-trained, she noted.

State Liquor Revenue Up From Last Year

Beer and liquor tax collections and fees in Nebraska this year are running far ahead of last year, a Nebraska Liquor Control Commission report disclosed Tuesday.

1,300 Collared

Cairo (AP) — In this city where many motorists drive with one foot on the gas and one hand on the horn, police have been kept busy enforcing a new military order banning excessive noise. In the first 10 days, more than 1,300 drivers were collared.

Easter Seal Receives $13,337

The income from the Lancaster County Easter Seal Society's Neighbor to Neighbor kits has reached some $13,337, according to county chairman Gary Sherman of Lincoln.

Sixty-three per cent of the 2,872 kits distributed by neighborhood volunteers in the county have been returned.

"We are pleased with the quick response Lancaster County residents have given in this spring fund drive for handicapped children and adults," Sherman said. "And we encourage those who have not yet returned their kits to do so immediately."

The Easter Seal spring fund drive dates were March 1 through April 22.

Weather Change Plan Announced

... Most Ambitious Ever

DENVER (AP) — The most comprehensive weather modification program yet undertaken in the United States will be launched by the Bureau of Reclamation a year from now in a tier of states from border to border along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains.

Announcement of the $20 million summer cloud seeding program was made here Tuesday by Gilbert G. Stamm, acting commissioner of the bureau.

States under construction for the project, which is to be called the High Plains Cooperative Program, are Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas and Wyoming.

Dr. Archie M. Kahan, chief of the Bureau of Reclamation's Division of Atmospheric Water Resources Management, said the project, which is expected to take from five to seven years, probably will be conducted from three cloud seeding sites in the 11-state area.

Project scientists have not yet determined the exact locations of the sites, Kahan said. He indicated, however, that ideally one of the cloud seeding sites would be in the Montana-Dakotas region, another at the juncture of Kansas, Colorado and Nebraska and a third somewhere along the Texas-Oklahoma line.

Kahan said that the governors of each of the states being considered have indicated interest in the weather modification program.

Most interest in the project came from Nebraska, the Dakotas and Montana, he said, with Oklahoma, Colorado and Kansas the least enthusiastic.

Kahan said the High Plains project differed from the bureau's most recent cloud seeding program in the San Juan Mountains of southwestern Colorado in that "High Plains is designed to put water down when and where it's needed and the San Juan project is aimed at storing water in one place for use in another place at a later date."

The San Juan project, the largest weather modification program so far in the United States, is designed to increase snowfall in the 1,300-square-mile Colorado River Basin. Bureau officials say the project, now in its third year, has the potential for increasing the annual water supply in the Colorado River Basin by as much as two million acre-feet.

Bureau officials said the water produced by the San Juan program would go primarily to the West Coast and its metropolitan areas.

Although clouds are seeded by ground-based generators during the winter in the San Juans, Kahan said that most of the summer seeding in the High Plains project would be from aircraft.

Kahan said that materials such as common salt or a mixture of ammonium nitrate-urea will be released into cumulus clouds in order to join with cloud droplets to produce rain.

"The primary objective of weather modification in the High Plains project will be to increase agricultural output and local water supplies," Kahan said. "However, the increased precipitation will also have an effect on the environment, the economy and human society."

A detailed "environmental impact study will be an early part of the project," Kahan said.

Bureau officials said that final site selection will be made this winter and initial research activities will get under way next spring.

Kahan said that site selection would be dependent upon "the nature and degree of local interest, freedom from conflicts with existing programs, observational data, state agencies interested in a cooperative role, minimum adverse environmental impact and the individual state's predisposition to cost sharing."

Although bureau scientists have not yet projected how much increase in precipitation the project will produce, Stamm said the program is expected to "resolve remaining uncertainties" about weather modification and "open what promises to be an environmentally sound source of clean water."

Czechs To Miss Maple Hill School

By SAM THORSON
Oustate Nebraska Bureau
Prague — When District 80's one-room Maple Hill School closes its doors later this month, a living chapter in early Nebraska Czech history closes with it.

The K-8 school, located atop a maple-sheltered hill in the Saunders County "Bohemian Alps" 6 1/2 miles northwest of here, will go the way of many other country schools after the semester's last school day May 16.

Mrs. Luzerne Whidden's six students — kindergarten Mary Ann Humlicek, seventh-grade Carol Ourada, and the Palensky kids (seventh-grade Tim, sixth-grade Tammy, third-grade Carmen and second-grade Pete) — will all transfer to Prague's K-12 public facility next year.

"All Excited"
Although not without some anxiety, the kids are "all excited" about the change, says Mrs. Whidden. She will retire with the closing of the school.

Declining enrollment, and the loss of taxable property to larger school districts by transfer of landowners, have spelled the end of a nearly 100-year-old tradition.

"This is where a lot of these people who migrated here and couldn't speak English got their education," says former school board member Albin Hoffman of the school's place in the largely Czech rural community's past. Hoffman and present board member Leonard Palensky have been compiling historical information on the school.

Czech Heritage
Even today, all six students are of Czech descent, although the Palensky children are half German on their mother's side. One parent from each of the three families — Palensky, Edward Humlicek and Mrs. Raymond Ourada — constitute the school board, which will soon disband.

Voters in the six-section district unanimously petitioned for its consolidation with Prague. The Prague district's tax levy was five mills higher than District 80's combined elementary-high school levy last year. But it offers bus transportation to Prague and guaranteed admittance to the high school.

"It's a shame we have to quit," says Hoffman, a District 80 graduate whose mother, father and two daughters also attended the school. His father preceded him on the school board.

Open House Set
The three-member board isn't about to let Maple Hill School lapse into oblivion with a final gesture of appreciation. They are planning an open house and potluck picnic at the school for 1 p.m. Sunday, May 20. Carol Ourada, whose mother and mother's father also attended Maple Hill, has been writing to former students and teachers, and asking local news media to announce the event.

"Providing the weather's nice, I think they can expect a lot of people," says Hoffman. Among those expected to attend is former schoolteacher Miss Emma Posopil, now retired and living in Wahoo. Miss Posopil was Hoffman's first teacher when he started school in 1912.

The closing won't be a new experience for the present teacher, Mrs. Whidden was teaching her students about Czechoslovakia and Germany in an attempt to nurture their awareness of their national roots.

"It's a way of life that's leaving," she said of the consolidation. "School after school is closing."

Moisture In Telephone Cable Cuts Off Omaha World-Herald

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A soaked telephone cable carrying 2,400 pairs of wires cut off all telephone and teletype service to and from the Omaha World-Herald building early Tuesday.

The outage, which began about 12:15 a.m. prevented both The Associated Press and United Press International, whose offices are located in the newspaper building, from transmitting and receiving the bulk of their news copy.

Jim Atkinson, a spokesman for Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Omaha, said that a manhole at 15th and Capitol filled with water, and a crack near a splice in the telephone cable allowed the water to enter. Atkinson said it was a gas-filled cable, that normally would stay dry despite water, but the crack at the splice allowed the water to enter. He termed the incident "pretty rare."

Al C. Carlson, general plant manager for Nebraska for the phone company, said there is "no possibility" that sabotage could have caused the problem.

The leaking cable was located at 15th and Capitol streets in Omaha—one block from the World-Herald building.

World-Herald printers have been off the job since last Friday in what the company terms a strike and the union calls a lockout. The service interruption cut off transmission of news from the two wire services to all Nebraska newspapers and broadcast stations for about one hour. Transmission to all stations and newspapers outside of Omaha and to one Omaha station were resumed after the brief interruption.

Transmission of news to and from the World-Herald building and to other Omaha broadcast stations remained cut off until about 6:20 a.m.

So. Platte Flood Later This Week

Flooding along the South Platte River in Nebraska, due to heavy rains in the Denver area plus melting snow in the Rocky Mountains earlier this week, is not expected until the latter part of this week.

The National Weather Service forecast the South Platte will run a foot to a foot and a half above flood stage at Paxton and North Platte Friday or Saturday. This would be a foot lower than the South Platte flood of June, 1956.

Meanwhile, the North Platte River was bank-full from Mitchell to Brady and the crest was expected to reach North Platte Wednesday, three days before a South Platte crest is expected.

The North and South Platte Rivers join just below North Platte and the Weather Service statement said the Platte will run near bank-full downstream from North Platte to Duncan this week.

"Necessary Precautions"
The Weather Service cautioned that "interests along the river should be prepared to take necessary precautions."

Nebraska Water Resources Department Assistant Director Marion Ball said it is expected the South Platte will surge into Nebraska at somewhere between 15,000 and 18,000 cubic feet per second and that it could cause "minor flooding" all around Sutherland and Hershey.

He said the Platte below North Platte "could give Brady a bad time."

While the Platte is expected to be over its banks from Brady eastward to Central City, he said it isn't expected to offer "real trouble" if proper precautions are taken.

Now At High Point
He estimated the North Platte River is "as high as it will go." The Weather Service reported that virtually all of the North Platte basin received from 250 to 300% of its usual April moisture.

In the South Platte basin, April moisture at individual stations ranged from 145% of average at Cheyenne, Wyo., to 366% at Longmont, Colo.

Three Nebraska officials took a bird's-eye look at the flood situation Tuesday. Civil Defense Director Burl Johnson, Water Resources Director Dan Jones and Ball flew over the Platte to meet with water resources officials from Colorado and Wyoming at Casper, Wyo., Tuesday afternoon.

Meanwhile, Burlington Northern denied a report that high waters washed over its tracks west of Hastings. Late Monday the Union Pacific reported Amtrak passenger trains were forced to reroute because of the flood waters. BN said that report was erroneous, and that track conditions were "normal."

The theme of the 1973 Tractor Power and Safety Day July 26 at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Field Laboratory at Mead will be "Energy—Use It. Don't Lose It." The car was driven by Tryba's 39-year-old son, Stephen.

Young Tryba was treated and released from a local hospital. Earlier Tuesday the State Accident Records Bureau said it had received a delayed report on a traffic fatality at Blair.

Feared Fuel Shortages Become Reality In April

By EDWARD W. HOWARD
Associated Press Writer

Fuel shortages that were feared in Nebraska in January became reality in April.

Reports from Lincoln to Scottsbluff indicate the situations vary; but a spot check by The Associated Press showed:

—Gas rationing to dealers is common in some degree in every portion of the state.

—Independent dealers are the hardest hit. Some have gone out of business for lack of supplies.

—There is a possibility that farmers may have some difficulty ty — how much can't be predicted yet — in getting fuel for their farm equipment.

—If you have not been affected by the shortage yet, indications are that you will be before the summer is over.

—Some authorities, including congressmen, fear the situation may be worse than it now appears.

One indicator of diminishing fuel supplies in April is the State of Nebraska's income from its 8 1/2 cents per gallon tax on gasoline. During the month of April, gas tax brought in $5,076,950.58, compared with last year's April total of $5,759,329.32.

However, for the year, the 1973 total is $21,947,359.47, compared to $21,419,822.90 in the first five months of 1972.

The figures show a noticeable decline for the month of April; notably the month when fuel shortages became a reality, rather than just a topic of conversation.

Rationing of gasoline and diesel fuel has been limited almost entirely to dealers — the people who sell it to motorists.

However, in western Nebraska, industry sources say some dealers are limiting sales to transient trucks in order to maintain a supply for regular, local customers.

Congressmen say Office of Emergency Preparedness figures show about 1,300 gasoline stations have closed, or have threatened to close, because of the problem.

Independent operators are the first to feel the pinch. They buy surplus gas from major oil company suppliers — but with diminishing supplies, the oil companies are concerned with seeing that their own dealerships have enough. With the dealerships themselves being placed on quotas, there is a dwindling surplus left for independents.

In this week's editions of the "Nebraska Oil Jobber," members of the Nebraska Petroleum Marketers Association were urged in an editorial to sell gasoline only to regular customers if supplies get low, and to limit sales to 10 gallons per customer if necessary. The editorial said "ecology must take a back seat to the needs of the people, at least for the time being."

Across Nebraska, owners and operators of service stations indicate they will combat the problem in similar ways: shorter hours and Sunday closings are likely. Limiting sales to customers appeared a possibility, depending on conditions.

Major oil companies generally are allotting dealers a certain percentage — anywhere from 85 to 100% of their previous year's volume — during the shortage. Only the east central Nebraska area around Grand Island has reported a shortage of fuel for farm machinery, but industry sources indicated that was because very little planting has been done this year.

Dealers in Grand Island already are reporting shortages.

In Loup City, a dealer reported he ran out, leaving 30 farmers without gas to plant crops. Eight of those farmers were reported able to find fuel on a day-to-day basis.

The most startling report came from Johnny Miller, owner of the Archer Oil Company in Archer, and a distributor for the Sun Oil Company.

"I supply 80 to 100 farmers in this area with gas and diesel fuel," Miller said. "With my contract expiring at the end of the month, they plan to discontinue service to me and my customers."

Miller said he had 70,000 gallons of gas on hand, but only 5,000 gallons of diesel fuel — about enough for one week, he said.

In Scottsbluff, CRA refinery manager Don Lowder said he believed gasoline would be distributed to some 40 local co-ops by allotment within the next few months.

In Omaha, Lincoln, Fremont, Beatrice and Alliance, the situations are comparable: quotas in effect, with oil companies predicting they likely will be able to supply dealers on a quota basis, but independents may find themselves without supplies.

In Beatrice, the Lincoln Products Terminal announced Tuesday that its pipeline supplies had been cut off until Thursday.

The terminal has a direct link to a refinery pipeline.

The terminal does business as Continental Oil, but also serves 8 other brands of gasoline. Officials said fuel would be available again at 8 a.m. Thursday.

I purchased a hospitalization policy from the Pennsylvania Life Insurance Company in February but have never received the policy. It was to cost $36.00 a year but I only applied for six months. I do not want the policy now. Will you please try and get them to refund my $48.00.

—M.E.B., Hastings

ACTION LINE: We contacted John Kilroy of the company's underwriting department in Santa Monica, Calif. He said that he would see that you got your refund.

Kilroy noted that if the policy has already been mailed, he will have someone in his office call you direct to find out if you would prefer the policy or the refund. He said that you should be hearing from them in about a week.

I have been given the job of securing nurses to stand by at a large convention that will soon be held in Lincoln. How can I get a list of competent nurses who are interested in doing this sort of work?

—Conventioner, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Call the Nurses Official Registry. This is an organization of the Nebraska Nurses Assn. which maintains a file of registered nurses and licensed practical nurses who are interested in providing the services you are looking for.

The registry is in the phone directory but is only open until 1 p.m. each day, not 4 p.m. as listed, so call in the morning.

I answered a questionnaire in a magazine called Shopper's Voice and I was to receive 100 free trading stamps plus a chance to win thousands more. I would like ACTION LINE to find out if I wasted my time.

—H.R., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: A call to the magazine's offices in Annapolis, Md. found that the stamps are now being mailed out.

A company spokesman, Margaret Lyons, suggests that if you haven't received your stamps in the next two weeks you write her at 2521 Riva Rd., Annapolis, Md. 21401.

She indicated that about 1,000 of the replies received did not have names or addresses on them, or else had been damaged in the mail.

A parking meter is located very close to the mailbox on the northeast corner of the intersection at 16th and O Sts., and this causes a problem when the mailman collects the mail each day at 5:00 p.m. Could the city restrict the meter, to no parking between 4:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m.?

—H.S., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dick Mickelson of the city traffic engineer's office said a restricted meter would be one solution to the problem. Mickelson visited the intersection after talking with ACTION LINE and agreed that there was a problem. He said the traffic engineering office would be meeting with postal officials to discuss the options to correct the situation.

Can you tell me a place I could go square dancing this summer?

—Kathy Fowl, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The Lincoln Square Dancing Council will be holding a number of dances this summer at the Eastday Center. For further information, contact Jerry Wright, 2326 Dorothy Dr., who is the council's summer dance chairman.

Could you please help me find some metal fittings for some nut bowls that I have carved? I carved the bowls from some old patterns that I had and then discovered that the metal parts were no longer available.

—W. A. Rosenthal, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Our inquiries to several manufacturers of walnut products and nut bowls brought no results.

But we were able to contact Richard Eggerling at the Nebraska Technical College at Millard. He said that he would examine the specifications you left with ACTION LINE and see if the fittings might merit attention as a special project in the metal working department.

Eggerling says he will let you know what his decision on the project is.

Dogs and cats in the Arnold Heights area seem to be continually running loose and causing problems. What solutions does ACTION LINE have for this problem?

—A Home Owner, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: This is a recurring problem in many areas of the city, and City Attorney Dick Wood told ACTION LINE, that he has only two suggestions.

Wood said that a person can either call the Humane Society about the problem or else work through a neighborhood association and try to get the voluntary cooperation of animal owners to respect their neighbors.

Family Finds Hardships, Incredible Beauty On Long Trek

The Lincoln Star 17
Wed., May 9, 1973

By NANCY HULVERSHORN
Star Staff Writer
They never ran out of gas.
They never had a flat tire.

But they did get robbed in Guayaquil, Ecuador, and stuck in a mud flat in Peru. They watered a lone tree in the middle of the desert and saw first hand the incredible and varied beauty of South and Central America.

In a mini bus, equipped with homemade camping gear the Dana Deeds family, including two preschool age daughters, took the long way home to Nebraska. For more than four months they wandered 21,150 miles from Fortaleza, Brazil through most of South America, Central America, north to Mexico and finally up to Lincoln.

Taking the trip were Dana Deeds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Deeds of Lincoln, his wife Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard McClymont of Holdrege, their daughters, Ellen, 3, and Gabriela, 2 Mrs. Deeds' sister, Beth, a University of Nebraska student, went along for part of the trip.

Peace Corps
The Deeds family has lived for the past five years in Fortaleza, Brazil, where Deeds was on the Peace Corps staff. When his time with the Peace Corps, which has a five year maximum rule, was coming to an end, the Deeds began planning their trip home.

"We saw it as sort of a once

in a lifetime opportunity," said Mrs. Deeds. "We only had one way to go." And camping was the only economical way to go.

Except for Argentina and Brazil, campgrounds in South America were either very primitive or nonexistent. The Deeds would often just pull off the road for the night.

Mud Flat
One late evening in Peru, Deeds pulled off the highway night, the frontwheels in a ditch, the rear ones in the mud. The next day men from a nearby village dug the car out the rear ones in the mud. The next day men from a nearby village dug the car out.

Every few days the family would seek out a hotel, mainly for the hot shower, said Mrs. Deeds.

In Central America, campgrounds were well developed and the Deeds saw many other Americans camping.

And in Mexico they found their first campground with a laundromat. "I was in culture shock," said Mrs. Deeds, who had pounded on rocks, scrubbed clothes in lakes, rivers and gas station bathrooms. "That was the thing I hated most about the trip," she said.

Churches And Indians
It was a churches and Indian trip, said the Deeds as they showed slides of the huge baroque cathedrals, and the lost Indian city of Tiahuanco, Bolivia.

Even the little towns of 500 or 1,000 have a big cathedral. "That says something about what men dreamed of and put their energies in," said Deeds.

High points on the trip included Salvador, Brazil, "a fantastic city . . . built on a large bay . . . where every Saturday night is carnival night." Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, surrounded by a lake, the ocean and mountains, is "probably the prettiest city in the hemisphere," said the Deeds.

The most literal "high" was atop a 16,500 foot pass in Peru's altiplano (high plain), where the altimeter in the car "went off the edge at 15,000 feet."

Only Five Cars
The Deeds saw only five cars that entire day. "It was eerie," they admitted. As they crossed the highest point, Deeds saw an Indian on his horse in the distance. He still wonders where that Indian was going.

They showed slides of the silent, deep blue and green lakes, as yet unpolluted, of a white farm house surrounded by green farmlands, much like Nebraska but taken in the Pampas of Argentina.

They talked of the good food in Argentina where $1 will buy a good, thick steak and a bottle of wine, of the good fishing in Central America, of the economic problems and incredible political dialogue in Chile.

There is a picture of a tree, growing in the middle of the Chl desert. Beside it stood a hand lettered sign, "Give me water." They did. Evidently other drivers also obeyed the sign, for beside the tree red flowers bloomed.

Trip Feasible
The Deeds feel that the camping trip is feasible for other Americans who want to visit the rest of the continent. The Pan American Highway is paved except for about 150 miles. Gas is no problem, though in some primitive areas the gas pump was a fifty gallon drum. The single most expensive part of the estimated $2,500 trip was a $300 ferry cost between Panama and Columbia. When the road is finally completed between these two countries, the Deeds feel that more American tourists to Central America will go further south.

Though the Deeds speak fluent Spanish and Portuguese, tourists who know only English can get by. Latin Americans often study English as a second language. "You can usually find someone who understands English," said Deeds.

"You get into a pattern of life, camping," said Deeds. "I'm ready to ship the car to Asia or Africa."

Instead the Deeds plan to travel in the United States, visiting friends and seeing "What the States are up to." Then they will decide whether to work here or return to Brazil.

To do it right doesn't mean it will cost more. See the professionals . . .

No young person should be without athletic interests, according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

Interest in physical activities should be maintained throughout a lifetime for good health and fitness.

The home and parents contribute greatly to these interests, says the association. Athletic interests should be chosen with the preference of the participant in mind and with consideration for his or her special abilities.

The NMA cautions parents not to try and get personal satisfaction out of the success of their children, especially if too much emphasis is placed upon winning and this becomes a goal above the child's welfare.

At the same time, he must not be allowed to become slack by the setting of goals too easily attained. Either extreme is destructive, says the Nebraska Medical Association and only a wise approximation of the happy medium and a recognition of individual differences among children give a child the best opportunity for self-expression in physical activities.

Three Articles Published On Idle Public Funds

Ways in which state and local governments manage their idle funds, a matter of widespread public interest, is the topic featured in three articles in the spring issue of the "Nebraska Journal of Economics and Business," quarterly journal of the College of Business Administration, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Because the discussion of investment of idle public funds is deemed particularly significant and timely for state administrators, a copy of the issue is being sent to the governor of each of the 50 states.

Dr. L. Wayne Dobson, Abbott Professor of Banking, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, authored a review of the issues surrounding the management of idle public funds. His article serves as an introduction to two other articles which he terms "worthy additions to the literature dealing with this topic."

"Idle Public Funds Policies: Some Additional Evidence" is discussed by Dr. James A. Vergrugge of the University of Georgia. The third article in the series, "Idle Cash Balances of State and Local Governments: An Estimation Technique" was written by Dr. S. Kerry Cooper of Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge. Dr. Cooper contends that more efficient management of idle public cash would not only provide sorely-needed new revenues to state and local governments but would greatly increase capital mobility in the country.

Environment To Be Topic

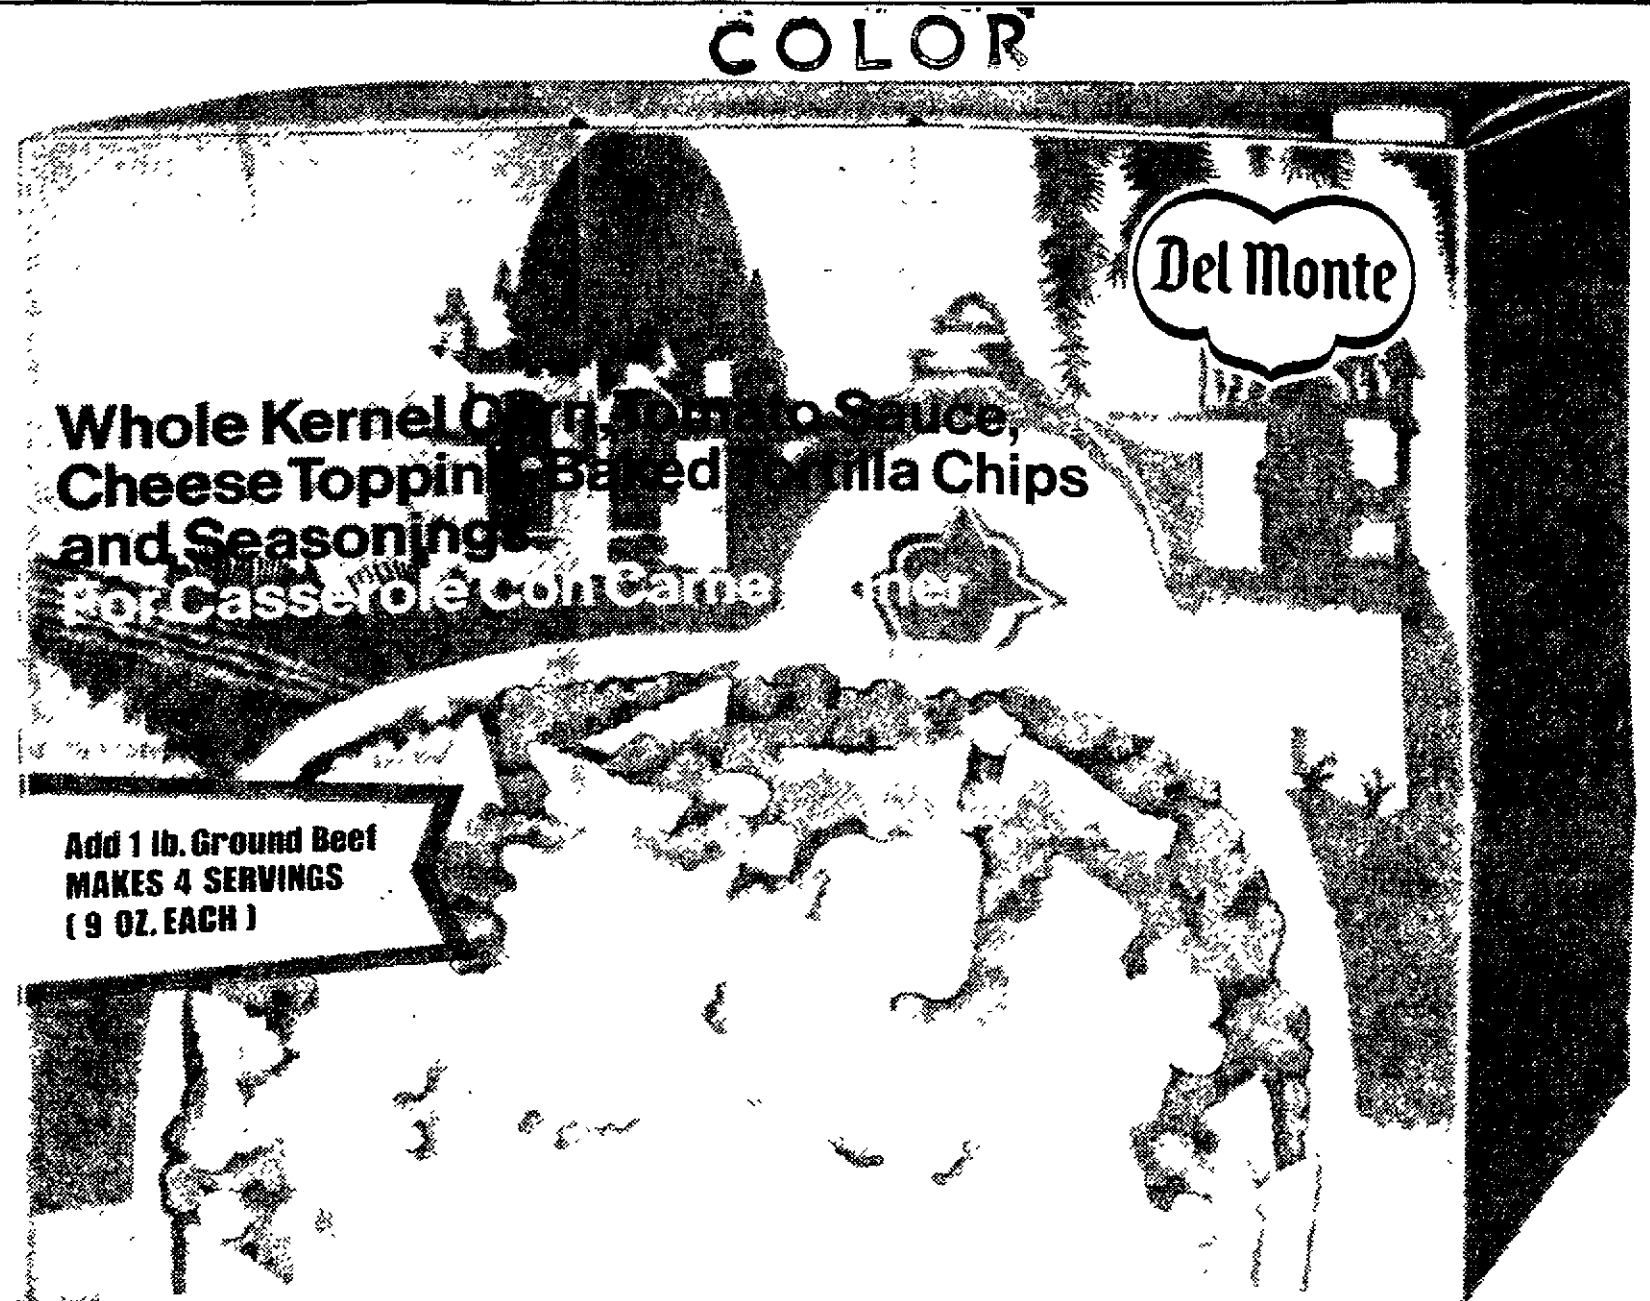

Our Always Changing Environment is the topic for an address by Dr. C. Bertrand Schultz to the annual Phi Kappa Phi banquet at Nebraska Wesleyan University Friday.

Dr. Schultz is director of the Museum and professor of geology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The Phi Kappa Phi Banquet in the NWU Campus Center opens events of the commencement weekend at Nebraska Wesleyan.

Students and faculty elected to Phi Kappa Phi national honorary for high scholarship attainments, will be honored during the dinner. They are Samuel Calvert Canton, Mo.; Robert L. Edstrom, Wahoo; Rodney A. Johnson, North Bend; Nancy Keller Seward, Joyce Kruse, Denver, Colo.; Delbert Lottman, Arlington; Gary Papke, Lincoln; Marilyn Gewacke, Warren, Geneva; Roger T. Wright, Seward; Lynn E. Zabel, Davkin; Merry Beth Adamson, Exeter; Thomas N. Atkins, Lincoln; Patricia Hedrick, Norfolk; Peggy Holloway, Fairbury; Kathleen McClelland, Des Moines; Joan Rannels, Dunlap, Ia. and Michael Warlick, Lincoln, and Dr. Nancy Craven, Hazelwood, assistant professor of history.

The deluxe way to help hamburger from Del Monte.

(And it actually serves four.)

Del Monte has a whole line of fancy meals at plain prices. One of them is Grand Tour Casserole Con Carne.

The plain price is due to the fact that it's made with hamburger (you'll need to buy a pound).

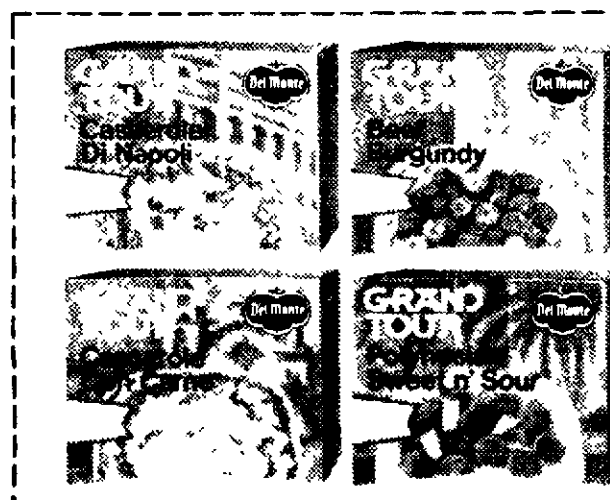

And it tastes fancy because we put everything into it: Mexican style tomato sauce, whole kernel sweet corn, baked tortilla chips, special seasonings, and blended cheese topping.

Your whole family will love Grand Tour Casserole Con Carne any night of the week.

Because it tastes like it came, not out of a box, but a cookbook.

4601 VINE STREET

San Francisco — Up in Port Orchard, Washington, there's George Wildman. Now 76 years old, he's been trying to drive the moles out of his yard. Some people would have given up. He sold the place. Left it to the moles. Not George.

He tried smoke bombs. Poison. Traps. Auto exhaust. The moles stayed in there, tunneling like wild.

Finally he set up a small decorative garden windmill. The moles are gone. George figures it out this way: "The windmill sends out vibrations they don't like."

(If you do this at home, set the windmill slightly off balance. Gives more horrid vibes.)

Nick the Greek was interviewed once in the middle of a two-day winning run on the Las Vegas dice tables. Did he urge the dice? "Come on, baby."

The Athenian philosopher said: "The dice don't know who's throwing them."

Man is constantly tinkering with fortune. But nobody has been able to read life's hole card until it was turned face up.

Still we keep on playing. (It's the only game in town, stranger.)

George had his garden troubles. But there's a farmer named Jan Player in South Africa can't keep hipopotamuses away from his sugar plantation. A hippo has a sweet tooth.

(Use sugarless gums.) I tell the children "Brush your teeth after every meal."

Jan got hold of a German chemist and the chemist invented a perfume that smells like lions. Jan will spray the perfume on the sugar cane. The hippos will be scared and stay away.

Nothing said in this dispatch about where Jan will sell sugar that smells like lions. Probably like the rest of us Jan is taking one thing at a time.

In Reno I met a gambling casino man who fishes on his day off. He said it was hard to figure the odds.

It stands to reason no two trout play the game the same way.

He said he tied bait on his line the first cast. No hook.

He said: "I let them win the first one. So they get the idea the game is on the square."

The odds in dice are only 1:414 against the shooter. That is why hard core gaming men stick to craps. The odds are 5:19 against you when you buck roulette.

To keep you happy while betting your money, the Nevada casinos hire shills. A shill plays with house money — she's only there to keep the table warm. Gamblers don't like to be first and alone at the table.

How do they keep the shill from taking home a few samples?

"We don't let a shill carry a handbag," a casino boss told me. "We don't let them wear coats with big pockets."

He said as a rule he puts two shills at a table. "They get the same amount of money to start. They are supposed to play only a dollar a chip at a time and only the 'Do Pass' line."

So they should come out at the end with the same amount of money. Or somebody's cheating.

Lady Luck leans on unusual situations. In Reno one night a lady threw 22 passes. That is she held the dice through 21 winning throws. If she had let her original bet of $1 pile up, she would have made $2,033.152.

She did not though. She pulled down her $1 each time she won. She walked out with $21.

Beatrice Council Hears Plan For 320-Acre Industrial Park

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Beatrice — A proposal for a 320-acre, $500,000 industrial park was laid before the city council Monday night, hopefully to be financed by city and county revenue-sharing funds.

The Beatrice Development Corp. (BDC) specifically requested $200,000 in city money and a spokesman said $300,000 would be asked of the county supervisors Tuesday. It was noted that such a facility took top priority in a recent poll of needed improvements by the Mayor's Advisory Council.

Roger Weber, BDC vice president, said three unidentified sites are under consideration based on a team evaluation by the State Department of Economic Development. Although the money is requested to be set aside now, he said no actual expenditure would be made without council approval.

The request brought quick and unanimous action by the council for the city attorney to meet with the county board and try to work out a joint agreement. A minimum of opposition was voiced, Councilman Matt Hale questioning whether the county would cooperate.

Mayor Bob Sargent said he was confident an agreement could be reached, however, and urged that "we show ourselves willing and ready." City Atty Earl Ahlschwede assured the council of the proposal's legality under the state's Industrial Development Act.

$275,000 On Hand

The city has approximately $275,000 in revenue-sharing money on hand now and anticipates receiving approximately $250,000 annually.

Weber quoted figures indicating that Gage County will need 900 new jobs over the next decade to maintain the present population. Taking six neighboring counties into consideration, he said, 3,205 jobs will be required to offset declining population trends.

In a cost breakdown, Weber suggested the site itself might cost $160,000. Utilities were estimated to add $200,000, a surfaced road $100,000 and rail rising $40,000.

On another matter, the council gave first-round approval to a measure which would double the salaries of councilmen and the mayor, effective next year. The vote was 6-2, with Hale and Larry Probst opposed. The change faces two more readings.

Opposition came from the Beatrice Central Labor Union, with President Ron Milke and five other representatives in attendance. Milke contended that the officials are "no more entitled to a 100% raise than any other employees."

Proposal Defended

Councilman S. B. Shick vigorously defended the proposal, insisting that "our work load is going to double to triple in the future." The present annual salary of $1,000 for councilmen and $2,400 for the mayor, he said, is "just like minimum wages."

Mayor Sargent noted that the elected officials have received no increase for several years while most workers have been given annual boosts. He also pointed out that "many cities pay $15,000 to $20,000 for a city manager or a full-time mayor."

Approved on a 6-2 vote was an increase of rezoning application fees from $30 to $45 as recommended by the Planning and Zoning Commission. The Board of Public Works (BPW) had asked for a hike to $80.

BPW Manager Richard Billingsley said the $45 would not adequately compensate his department and amounted to "a subsidization of other city functions." He also lost out when the council refused to allocate any portion of the increase for extra duties recently assigned his office in new zoning procedures.

There was considerable discussion of whether the BPW should be compensated when it performs services for other departments. Bill Johnson of the Planning and Zoning Commission noted that "for the first time in memory" the board had billed his office (140 hours) for updating a city map.

Billingsley said such transfer of funds is equitable and a proper procedure. As it is, he noted, the utilities operation is showing "only a slim margin of profit."

Salary List Provided

Obviously miffed, Billingsley later balked at Councilman Allen Grell's request for a salary list of BPW employees. Conceding that the salaries are a matter of public record, he finally turned them over with a remark that "the mechanics (of the request) were very clumsy and crude."

Grell and the mayor said they felt the council is entitled to see the salaries and has no plans for a "vendetta" about which Billingsley expressed concern.

The council also agreed to retain Dana, Larson, Roubal and Associates as a consultant firm for possible revenue-sharing projects. However, a proposal to request the firm to begin plans on a community center failed 3-5 after it was noted that local architect Bruce McBride was also interested in a similar consulting arrangement.

County Board Refers Bids To Lancaster Manor Chief

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday referred bids received on bedspreads, draperies and other supplies for Lancaster Manor to manor Administrator Jerry Gibson.

The commissioners noted that the Lancaster Manor Advisory Board meets Wednesday, at which time a recommendation could be made to the board on the bids.

There were six bids received on the draperies and linens but only one was received on equipment since a second bid was rejected for failure to enclose a certified check. A bid on the linen items was also rejected for failure to enclose the required certified check.

In other action, the board approved an amusement license for The Elms, operated by Zeola Hammond, after Mrs. Hammond appeared at the "staff meeting" to explain why she had not filed promptly her reports on membership with the county.

Last week the commissioners decided to ask Mrs. Hammond to come before the board regarding her late reports before they would act on the amusement license.

Mrs. Hammond said that she was not aware that the reports were required monthly but would comply with the law and the commissioners' wishes by filing them each month on time.

The commissioners also took action to make up a recording sheet to be furnished all bottle clubs for filing the required reports so they would be uniform and have meaningful information on them.

In other business, the board approved the establishment of a joint City-County Agency on Aging as approved by the City Council Monday.

In other action, the commissioners:

—Approved an application for a subdivision permit near Hickman sought by William Gushard.
—Approved change orders for work at Lancaster Manor.
—Set May 22 for hearing on the application of William McDonald for a bottle club license.

Ban Is Requested

Porto Alegre, Brazil (AP) — A group of Arabs in Brazil asked the federal police to ban an exhibit of 150 photographs about the Arab-Israeli conflict. ment Association at its annual meeting Tuesday. Schwartz succeeds Jerry L. Sellentin, director of personnel at Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Other officers elected are Ray Oopping, personnel manager for Square D, Georgia Schmidt, personnel administrator for Notifier Corp., and Paul Craig, personnel assistant for Norden Laboratories.

Rick D. Holman, a University of Nebraska junior from Pender majoring in personnel management, was named recipient of the association's $300 scholarship.

Overthrow Of Government Said Possibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson said Tuesday the government of Cambodia probably would be overthrown before the rainy season if Congress banned funds for continued U.S. bombing.

Richardson told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he believes Congress can, by appropriate action, require the President to cease the bombing, and that the President would obey.

He reiterated, however, that the air operations would not be affected, because of their high priority, by mere denial of a fund transfer authority requested in a pending supplemental appropriation bill.

Terms Of Lending Program Agreed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sources said Senate-House conferees agreed Tuesday on compromise terms of a $1 billion-a-year lending program to aid rural electric and telephone systems.

President Nixon is expected to sign the legislation if it wins final approval in Congress, said a source close to Republicans. The new program would replace one killed by the President.

In essence, conferees accepted terms of a House-passed bill after removal of mandatory language on loans at 2 per cent interest, sources said.

They added that the language was made discretionary, thus eliminating the mandatory features that had originally drawn Republican opposition when the House passed its version of the legislation last month.

In addition, sources said, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz sealed the bargain with a letter pledging Nixon administration officials would keep the program going at an annual level of roughly $1 billion during the coming three years.

This would involve a package of $763 million a year in insured loans, most of it at 5 per cent interest but $105 million of it at 2 per cent, plus an estimated $200 million annually in guaranteed loans, covering rural electrification programs. Rural telephone bank programs would be continued, with several amendments in the law.

The legislation would provide for a revolving fund arrangement essentially as envisioned by the original House bill. Nixon had killed the Rural Electrification Administration system of direct loans from tax funds at 2 per cent interest and, in its place, had provided a plan of private financing for REA-backed loans with requirements they bear 5 per cent interest.

The Senate originally passed legislation to restore the program killed by Nixon, and the President's associates indicated it would be vetoed. The House's version was fashioned in an effort to gain a compromise more likely to win Nixon's signature. Republicans had fought unsuccessfully on the House floor for a modification giving the President more flexibility to manage the money involved.

The goal of the low-interest loans is to provide help to the more needy systems.

Public School Staff Could Decrease By 10

The number of professional staff members in the Lincoln Public Schools would drop by about 10 next fall if the Board of Education approved staffing at the level requested thus far.

Supt. John Prash told the board at a regular meeting Tuesday that estimates are the school district will have about 200 fewer pupils next year.

The biggest total decrease in staff members would be at the elementary level, where enrollment is expected to be lower. More students are expected to enroll in the junior and senior high schools, and the total number of teachers at those levels would increase slightly.

Fewer Professionals
Among expected decreases would be a change from four to three professional staff members in Prash's office, reflecting a reorganization already accomplished.

Another professional would be added in the personnel office, however, to handle a plan for more energetic monitoring of cooperative relationships with the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Associate Supt. Ronald Brandt in the office of instruction would get a full-time administrative assistant rather than the half-time administrative intern he has now.

Prash also said additional help has been requested in elementary physical education and music and in special education, junior high counseling, student services and media.

Still Decrease
Despite such additions, however, the total number of staff members would still drop, since 23.5 fewer teachers have been requested at the elementary level.

Final decisions on staffing matters for 1973-74 will await school board decisions at budget-preparation time.

In other matters, the board approved the appointment of Roger D. Van Deventer, 33, of Chesterfield, Mo., as art consultant for the coming school year.

Van Deventer, now supervisor of art in the University City, Mo., public schools, will succeed Elva McFie, who is retiring. Brandt said Van Deventer, who has a masters degree from Southern Illinois University, "has an especially strong background in elementary school art."

Policy Approved
The board also approved, in principle, a policy statement saying student teachers working with a single cooperating teacher "will never serve more than one-half the time during the semester as the primary source of instruction in any classroom."

The statement, part of a redrafting of the school district's policy and regulations on student teaching, also says team teaching situations provide the most flexibility of opportunity for student teachers.

The board also endorsed 4-2, in an informal straw vote, possible state legislation which would permit the Lincoln Technical College to continue to operate from a district coterminous with the public school district and under the same board.

Opposing the vote were

Catherine Angle and Marvin Stewart, who said the district should be larger. John Lux said although he would side with Mrs. Angle and Stewart as a long-term policy, he would not object to continuing the operation essentially as it is for the near future.

The board also —formally approved a teacher salary and benefit package for next year reflecting an overall average increase of 5.67% and met in executive session to discuss negotiations progress with other employee groups.

—formally approved purchase of two buses from the Motor Bus and Equipment Co. of Lincoln for $19,529 each —approved purchase of 61 new IBM Selectric typewriters for classroom teaching use at a cost of $385 each trading in for an allowance of $150 each reconditioned Selectrics purchased for $165 in 1964.

Aching Back Forces Man Out Of Store

MARQUETTE, Mich. (AP) — His aching back forced Curtis Bannister out of the supermarket business, so he decided to fulfill a lifetime ambition to become a teacher.

"I thought he was a little bit too old," said Bannister's teenage daughter, Robin.

"Well, I thought he was crazy," said her 11-year-old sister, Denise.

Mrs. Bannister worked to support her husband and four children while he studied at Northern Michigan University. Originally an eighth-grade dropout, Bannister graduates this week at age 36.

"Faith, hope and love got me through college," he said in tribute to his family.

"And a bad back" added his wife, Gertrude.

Olympic Film About Losers Ignores Spitz

PARIS (AP) — Swimmer Mark Spitz was the face on the cutting room floor. The official Olympic film expected to premiere at the Cannes Film Festival later this month contains not a single sequence devoted to him, despite his winning seven gold medals at Munich.

One of the collaborators in making the film, Claude Lelouch, said "There never was any intention just to repeat what everyone saw on television. That's the best explanation. I suppose, why Spitz doesn't get much attention."

Also, Lelouch added he built his film around the losers. And Spitz is no loser. He was honeymooning Tuesday at Palm Beach, Fla., with his 21-year-old bride of three days, Susan, a UCLA coed.

Chit Chat with Roxi

Teenagers have problems as do all people and whether that teenager is a girl or a boy makes no difference in the matter of worrisome questions. Talk your problems over with Roxi — Write to her in care of The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Nebr.

you're out on a date with a boy and you start thinking about the boy you still like who hasn't asked you out. I catch myself doing it, and it really bothers me because the boy I'm out with doesn't deserve it. What is there to do?

can I get her back?

B.E.

Dear B.E.: Well, you can begin by asking her out. If you like a girl, then for heavens sake ask her for a date. Secondly, you should have realized by now that taking a girl for granted is the best way to lose her. Remember a girl likes to know she is liked and wanted, just as a boy does.

H.P.

Dear H.P.: You can start by concentrating on the boy you are with, instead of the boy you still like who hasn't asked you out. Have a good time, and remember there are other boys in the world and you're going out with one of them, so enjoy it.

Dear Roxi:

How do you explain to a guy that you want to go out with him and have a good time, but that's as far as you want to go? The guy I've been dating lately doesn't seem to get my message.

Anne R.

Dear Anne:

You can start by explaining that friends come in both sexes and that you consider this boy a good friend, but that you are not ready for a serious relationship and that you feel it would be better if you were just friends and that the relationship be kept on the light side.

Dear Roxi:

What does a person do when

Dear Roxi:

The girl I like went out on a date with another guy I just never thought she would do it. True, we have never gone out, but I guess I took too much for granted. I mean, she used to like me, I think she still does, but then she goes out with another guy. I really don't want to lose the one girl I really like. How

Home Economics Studies Have Many Followers At Home And Abroad

Those of us who realize that good eating habits and exercise programs are extremely necessary in achieving the best, both mentally and physically, try to control ourselves in what we eat, and make certain we have the proper amount of exercise. Indicative of the U.S. emphasis placed on good health are the numerous physical fitness programs, health spas, home extension agencies, and a variety of literature on dieting and food nutrition. However, even here in the richest country of the world, proper nutritional supplements to the diet are problems, especially among low income or poverty level people.

Likewise, most of the Latin American countries are confronted by severe nutritional dilemmas, but the problem is not limited to the poverty-stricken. Prompted by the fact that poor diets are equally prevalent among high and low income people of Latin America The Great Plains Wheat, Inc. and the Foreign Agriculture Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture are currently sponsoring a nutritionist mission tour of the United States.

By special invitation of the two agencies, a team of four dietitians, nutritionists and home economists — Miss Miriam Diaz of Pregonero, Venezuela; Miss Luz Angela Ortiz of Ibague, Colombia; Mrs. Maria Teresa Lara of Sonsonate, El Salvador, and Miss Elisa Quintana of Caracas, Venezuela — are visiting various types of U.S. organizations involved in phases of nutrition, including research, extension and food programs.

At a meeting with the press on Monday afternoon, May 7, Miss Ligia Restrepo, who represents Great Plains Wheat and serves as the team interpreter, explained that the health problem in Latin America is due to the lack of education in nutrition among people who do not realize the importance of good food habits.

According to Miss Restrepo, the team members are currently conducting national programs in nutrition, dietetics and home economics.

The kitchens at Lincoln General Hospital and Gooch's Mill were not the only places in Lincoln where certain angles of home economics were on display on Monday.

On Monday evening the Home

Economics department at Lutheran Junior High School showed an admiring audience what it could do — fashionwise, that is.

The girls in the sewing classes at Lutheran Junior High, presented a fashion show on Tuesday evening, and every stitch in every piece of wearing apparel had been put there by those 'junior citizens' who enjoy sewing.

There were long dresses, pant suits, sports costumes and all in a variety of materials and patterns.

Installation Ceremony Planned

Mrs. P. G. Wirtz will be installed president of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Faculty Women's Club during ceremonies which will follow a 12:30 o'clock luncheon to be held at The Knolls on Wednesday afternoon, May 9.

Other newly-elected officers who will be installed at the final meeting of the year will be Mrs. F. A. Haskins, first vice president; Mrs. L. Svajgr, second vice president; Mrs. R. F. Allen, third vice president; Mrs. G. P. Hanna, Jr., secretary, and Mrs.

W. Sybouts, treasurer.

The organization's past presidents will be special guests at the festivity for which Mrs. Marj J. Hammer served as chairman.

"Fresh Flowers For All Occasions" will be the topic of the program to be presented by a representative of Kramer's Greenhouse.

LWV Will Discuss Expansion Dilemma

Whether the League of Women Voters of Lincoln should be expanded into a city-county league will be among many of the questions confronting that body's 350 members at its annual business meeting which will be held on Thursday, May 10.

The 51-year-old organization's annual meeting will be held at the Villager Motel, 52nd and O Sts., between the hours of 9:30 and 1:30 o'clock.

Election of new officers and directors and adoption of the local program and budget for the coming year also will be included on the meeting's agenda. In addition, 30 delegates will be selected to attend the LWV state convention, and 13 members will be named officers and directors.

Mrs. Joseph Julian was in charge of arrangements for the annual meeting.

Members of the two nominating committees selecting officers and delegates were Mrs. Thomas Coleman, Mrs. Kay Mapes, Mrs. Robert H. Hurlbutt, III, Mrs. Jerome Fussell, Mrs. Sally Haywood, Mrs. Antonio Marquez, Jr., Mrs. Paul Groth, and Mrs. F. Charles Lamphear.

Mrs. Charles S. Stephen, Jr., is the retiring president of the Lincoln League of Women Voters.

Know Your Antiques

Sir Robert Peel, founder of the British police service, has become famous again because the Staffordshire figurine of him has sold for record price. (Christie, Manson and Woods, London, England)

Ralph and Terry Kovel

Staffordshire figures are hitting new price records as the collectors continue to search for the rarest examples. Figures were made by the myriad pottery factories in the Staffordshire district in England from 1837. Study has shown that many of the men and women portrayed were originally thought to be purely decorative, but they are actually politicians, stage stars, sportsman, criminals and other known persons.

The most expensive Staffordshire figure today is a 12-inch figure of Sir Robert Peel on a horse. It was sold in London in January for $4,200. Sir Peel was born in 1788 and he was active in politics. In 1822, he started the police service in London and his name gave the men the nicknames used today, bobbies or Peelers. He was prime minister twice. In 1850, his horse threw him and he died. The figure was made at the time of his death.

Last year, we asked our readers to send dated samples of human hair so that Mr. Donald Weiss could analyze the lead content for a scientific study. Many cooperated with this effort to discover the extent of lead pollution in past years. The full report was published in Science Magazine on Oct. 6, 1972.

Lead is eaten or taken in through breathing and then deposited in the hair. The lead content of hair does not change once it is cut so the study gave an accurate guide to the amount of lead ingested by Americans living in past centuries.

The study showed that the lead content of human hair has decreased during the past 50 years. It appears that our ancestors ate lead because water was collected in lead roofing, stored in leaded jugs and that they used lead glazed pottery and cosmetics. There is more lead in the atmosphere today, but we use less in our daily lives.

When Grandma made her hair picture using the hair from relatives, she never imagined that it would add to the study of twentieth-century pollution.

Q—My bell seems to be a fancy cow bell. It has the words "Saignelegier, 1878" on one side.

A—That particular bell was found in all parts of the United States, and for good reason. It is a musical Swiss cowbell made by a Connecticut factory. The Bevins Brothers started making bells in 1832 and each year changed the number on the bell. For some unknown reason the numbers remained the same after 1878. Bells marked this way were made to recent times.

Q—My blue glass, springtop canning jar has the name The Widemouth Telephone Jar.

A—You own a fruit jar made by the Whitney Glass Works of Glassboro, N.J. about 1905-1918. It was made in a handmade style with a ground lip. A machine-made version was also made.

Q—I understand that a true soup tureen is at least 8-inches deep.

A—No. A soup tureen is a large bowl made to hold soup for service at the table. The size does not determine its name.

Q—What is German silver?

A—German silver is made from copper, zinc and nickel. It usually had 50 per cent copper, 25 per cent nickel, and 25 per cent zinc. It looks like a slightly gray silver. It is sometimes called nickel silver or white silver. There is no silver in German silver.

ABBY: call education board

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's spelling. It's horrid. I swear I don't know how he ever got out of high school.

He is just beginning his career as a policeman, and his poor spelling has already started giving him trouble. He has to make out reports in writing and when he writes, "suspishun" and "rezizing" on a report, it raises a lot of eyebrows.

He talks well, but his spelling is outrageous. I told him to carry a small dictionary and to look up any words he isn't sure of. He says: "You have to know how to spell a word before you can find it in the dictionary so what's the use?"

Abby, do you know where an adult can learn how to spell from scratch? Even if it took a year it would be miracle enough for us. Thank you.

WORRIED WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Call your board of education and ask them what is available in their adult education department. Evening classes, or special tutoring could be the answer, but first your husband should take some tests to determine the kind of special help he needs.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WHITE VERSUS PURPLE" IN PANAMA CITY: Neither! To be appropriately attired for a divorce hearing, I'd vote for BLACK. In a sense, one is burying a dead relationship.

conZOOsations

By LINDA OLIG

We've been strutting around, proud as peacocks, ever since we were selected to officially welcome you back to the Lincoln Children's Zoo.

And why shouldn't we be proud? We peacocks — or our ancestors, that is — were once used to grace the tables of royalty. As if that weren't enough to make us proud, we are the national birds of India, our homeland, where our relatives still in the wilds inhabit the dense forest areas.

Here at the Zoo, we peacocks wander about, checking on the other birds and mammals — the ducks, geese, swans, jack rabbit, chickens, man and capyabras — who also are free to come and go as we please. But we peacocks are a rare breed. We rarely take wing and fly from the zoo's confines. We know where our home is and where our friends are. During the day, we also frequently drop in for a chat with several of our fellow zoo residents, including the new Shetland pony. But during the hours of darkness, we prefer the highest of tree limbs, our favorite spots for bedding down for the night.

It may sound conceited, but not only are we the world's largest pheasants, but we also are among the most beautiful birds in the world. As is generally true throughout the species of feathered creatures, we males are beautifully colored, while the females are relatively dull in appearance. But there is a reason for our women, the Peahens — together we compose the group called Peafowl — to be less attractive. It's called camouflage — their feathers are the color of the trees and shrubs, thus giving them more protection from our predators, particularly during the 28-day incubation period required for hatching the eggs.

There is also a reason for our beautiful plumage, so graciously bestowed on us by Mother Nature. That is to attract the females. Our plumage is generally blue in color, although there are white varieties of the blue peacocks — and we have majestic tail feathers which make us all the more attractive.

Needless to say, we peacocks get considerably more attention from the visitors to the zoo than do the peahens. But it is attention from the peahens that we want. And that's the one and only reason that we spread our multi-colored tail feathers. With us, that is a courting gesture, to attract the females. Here at the zoo, there are more peacocks than peahens so we have to compete for their favorable attentions. But we soon will lose interest in our masculine but show-offish antics — so about June 1 we will stop fanning our tail feathers and by about July 1 those feathers will have fallen out, only to appear during the next courting season. Meanwhile, the peahens will select their own nesting areas in which they will lay their eggs and incubate them for 28 days. Our homo sapien friends here at the zoo will take care of our babies and sell them to other zoos in order to restrict the number of our relatives taken from the wilds.

If you want to see us fan our tail feathers, a favorite attraction among zoo-goers, be sure to stop in this month. Remember the zoo will be open from 10 to 5 on Tuesdays through Saturdays and 10 to 6 on Sundays all through May.

Opening lead - queen of hearts.

Many contracts fail due to unlucky distribution, but some of them can be rescued by means not readily apparent.

Let's say you're in six diamonds and West leads a heart. You win with the ace, expecting to make all the tricks, but when you lead the A-K of trumps, West shows out and you realize that even the small slam is now in danger.

However, all is not yet lost. For East may have to follow suit when you now play the K-Q-10 of spades. If he does, you can discard a heart on the fourth round of spades and so make the slam.

Unfortunately, East ruffs the third spade, cashes a heart, and down you go.

This is certainly an unlucky result, since the trumps could have been divided 3-2 or East might have had the simple decency to hold three or more spades. Nevertheless, the fact is that the contract might have come home with a slightly different method of play.

After seeing the 4-1 trump division, the best play is to cash the king of spades and play the ten to the ace. When you next lead the nine, it becomes far from easy for East to ruff — because he may think West has the queen.

East is apt to discard on the spade lead from dummy, because he may think your hand looks something like this:

♠ K10 ♥ 103 ♦ AKQ542 ♣ QJ7

In that case, he would hand you the slam by ruffing the nine but defeat you by discarding on it.

If he discarded, you would make the slam by crossing to dummy with a club and discarding a heart on the jack of spades. Your conscience might bother you for having stolen a slam you were not entitled to

Weddings Are Solemnized

At a 3 o'clock ceremony which took place on Saturday afternoon, April 28, the marriage of Miss Judith Ann Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Duncan of Omaha, to Paul Jon Dietrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dietrich of Wilber, was solemnized at Miller Park Presbyterian Church in Omaha. The Rev. Elbert Nelson read the lines of the service.

Mrs. John Sobota of Omaha and Miss Donna Dietrich of Wilber were chosen by the bride to be honor attendants, and Mrs. John Prouty and Miss Peg Guthrie, both of Omaha, served as bridesmaids and bridesmaid, respectively.

Daniel Dietrich of Omaha attended Mr. Dietrich as best man, and groomsmen included Steven Wohl of Webster, N.Y., Steven Duncan and James Duncan, both of Omaha, David Johnson of Lincoln, Chuck Smith and James Lichtman, both of Blair, seated the guests.

The bride appeared in a gown fashioned of doekin crepe in the Empire mode. An overlay of lace created a vest effect on the fitted bodice, which was completed with a wedding band collar and long, Bishop sleeves. The softly-gathered skirt extended into a chapel-length train which was accented with lace appliques. A bandeau of beaded daisies held in place her finger-tip veil, and she carried a cascade of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

The wedding of Miss Carolyn Sokolik, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sokolik of Dorchester, and Virgil L. Wahl, son of Mrs. Edward Wahl of Western and the late Mr. Wahl, was solemnized at 6 o'clock ceremony which took place on Saturday evening, April 28, at St. John's United Church of Christ in Western. The Rev. Edwin Eiben officiated at the service.

Miss Rita Katas of Lincoln was the bride's honor attendant, and Miss Doris Hockstetter of Dorchester and Miss Linda Ebbens of Wilbur were bridesmaids.

Douglas Wahl of Western attended his brother as best man, and the groomsmen were James Stewart of Western and Dale Burda of Wilbur. Norman Sokolik of Crete and Duane Wahl of Beatrice seated the guests.

The gown chosen by the bride for her wedding was fashioned of organza over taffeta in the Empire mode. The V-neckline of the snugly-fitted bodice was trimmed with wide bands of Venetian lace, and the lace was repeated to cuff the sheer, Bishop sleeves. Beneath the lace-encircled waistline, the skirt was designed in the A-line silhouette. A bandeau of lace held in place her veil of illusion.

Mr. Wahl and his bride will reside in Western. Mr. Wahl, who has served a tour of duty with the National Guard, is associated with the Petersen Manufacturing Co. in DeWitt.

Norris School District Schedules Activities

Among the organizations holding their final regular-season meetings this week will be the Parent-Educator Group (PEG) of the Norris School District. The meeting will be held at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, May 10, at the Norris Elementary School.

Election of officers for the coming year will be held, and those in attendance will also discuss the possibility of the Norris district participating in the American Field Service (AFS) program.

Miss Cynthia Calvin will present an in-depth look at the innovative French study program that has been utilized in the Norris District, and to demonstrate the success of that program a group of fourth graders will present an original French play.

All parents of youngsters who attend school in the Norris District are invited to attend the meeting.

More news from the Norris District concerns the fact that the Norris High School Marching Band has been invited to participate in the Sun Festival which will be held next winter in El Paso, Tex., in conjunction with the annual Sun Bowl football game.

A number of fund-raising events are being planned by the band's 100 members and the Music Boosters organization. The first of these will take place on Tuesday evening, May 15, at the high school, which is located south of Hickman.

It will take the form of a "pops" concert to be presented by the concert and stage bands.

the school chorus, the swing choir and a Dixieland band. Prior to and following the 8 o'clock concert, an art exhibit and va-ag show will be featured at the school.

Everyone is invited to attend the event.

During the month of June, band members plan to hold bake sales and car washes, and in July, a combination street dance and box social will be held. Further information regarding these events will be available at a later date.

Professions Said Not Taking Lead

... By Omaha Mayor Leahy

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Calling criticism of the courts "unwarranted," Omaha Mayor Eugene Leahy Tuesday placed the blame for any social ills squarely on professional leaders, accusing them of "non-involvement."

Leahy admonished about 290 lawyers, judges, law enforcement officers and businessmen at a Law Day luncheon in Lincoln to change their images and volunteer their leadership.

The mayor said only 35 of 266 Lincoln attorneys belong to the Chamber of Commerce—one example, he said, which "tells the story of the non-involvement of our professional people."

Trained for Leadership

Yet "lawyers are trained for honest, responsible leadership," the attorney and former municipal judge said.

"I really don't know what it's going to take to get 'em excited enough to make a volunteer effort" to improve society, Leahy told the professionals.

He said they should offer free services and lead people "to gather up the resources that will make a better government."

"The volunteer," Leahy declared, "is what this country of ours needs today—the volunteer who is well trained in discipline and leadership roles."

"Sad Commentary"

But he sighed, "I guess it's something despicable to become a volunteer." He called it a "sad commentary" that "professional people can afford not to belong" among the involved.

While he asserted that "the legal profession should be the most responsible that we find in America," Leahy also reproached the clergy.

Clergymen "stand up year after year and talk about changing water into wine," he said. But he asked rhetorically, "How are they going to do it when they don't know about the community in which they serve as leaders?"

Why No Labor?

The mayor further chided the professionals, asking why labor leadership was not included among businessmen at the luncheon.

"We have a real necessity of getting labor leaders cranked in with business, trying to find solutions in working with government," he said.

"I think too much of the time too many people are attacking people within a given system without being in the system," Leahy maintained.

He indicated no surprise at public opinion polls which indicate what he called "non-interest in government." He said leaders have become "selfish" and "addicted to the ego society," and he called for communicating to respark interest.

Media Praised

Radio and television is one way, Leahy said, extending kudos to the media. But he said, "The real evil is when we bar the door" to newsmen.

"How are the people going to know" about issues affecting them, Leahy asked, if public leaders "kick the media out"?

He said young people are "filled with cynicism and skepticism" of their leaders. He reasoned that youth "are not looking for miracle workers, they're simply looking for honesty" in resolving social problems.

Before the courts are criticized instead, Leahy said, "We should first hear more about the courts, society and social ills before attacking them."

He dismissed society's indictments of the courts for high divorce rates and drug use, for example, asserting that involved leaders "can dispel this feeling from the minds of the citizenry."

"Maybe we're living in too much of an affluent society," he suggested, "Maybe what we need is another depression."

Leahy said, "We are addicted to a materialistic world and we are suffering from it." The mayor called on professionals to "accept that challenge" of involvement and honesty to make changes.

State Tuition Aid Law Defended Before Court

The 1972 law authorizing the state to give tuition aid to students attending private colleges was defended before the State Supreme Court Tuesday on the grounds that law proposes to give students freedom to attend the college of their choice regardless of their financial status.

Attorneys for the State Commission for Higher Educational Aid, in asking the court to overturn a Lancaster County District Court ruling, said the law is intended to help students and does not violate the constitutional separation of church and state.

The law, passed by the 1972 Legislature with the proviso that it would be tested in the courts first, would provide up to $500 per year to students attending private schools. The exact amount of the grant would be determined on a need basis.

Lancaster District Court held the law to be unconstitutional. But the attorneys argued, "An analysis of the actual operations of the statute discloses no concern whatsoever for the financial needs of the private schools."

"If any financial benefits accrue to the schools under this program, they can only be viewed as incidental to the primary benefit which the Legislature intended to and did confer upon the student."

St. Elizabeth Hospital Employee Charged With Drug Possession

A 24-year-old employee at the St. Elizabeth Community Health Center who was arrested Monday afternoon at the hospital's locker room Tuesday was charged in Lancaster County Court with two counts of possession of a controlled substance.

A preliminary hearing for William James Grobe was set for May 18. Bond was set at $1,500.

According to police reports, hospital officials began to suspect Grobe was involved in the disappearance of drugs at the hospital after an incident Saturday in which a prescription drug was taken from a locked cabinet to which Grobe allegedly had a key.

Hospital officials said they searched Grobe's locker Monday, found a quantity of pills and called police, according to police reports. Grobe was arrested immediately after he came to the locker room and opened his locker door, police said.

Hospital officials said Grobe had been employed at the hospital for about three weeks. Hospital officials said Grobe's employment has been terminated. He had worked in the hospital's "central supply" area.

Welfare Dept. Okays Revised Dental Fees

The State Department of Public Welfare has adopted a new dental fee schedule effective June 1, it was reported Tuesday.

Don Hogg, chief of the medical services division, said approximately one-third of the fees paid to dentists were increased, while another third was decreased.

Generally, he said fees were increased for the less expensive procedures, such as dentures and amalgam fillings for children, and decreased for some of the more expensive dental work.

On the balance, Hogg said he expected that the total cost of the dental program would increase only a fraction over the current expenditures of $1.3 million per year. Approximately 60% of the costs of the program are borne by the federal government, with the state and counties making up the balance.

Toronto, Ont. (AP) — Only one of 22 Canadian film features produced in 1972 was rated suitable for general public viewing without restrictions, the Ontario Board of Censors reported.

Fort Calhoun Building Delay Asked By Environmentalists

Omaha (AP) — An environmental organization asked an Atomic Energy Commission safety and licensing board Tuesday to hold up some construction now under way at the Fort Calhoun nuclear plant.

The request came from Citizens for Survival, a group challenging operation of the Omaha Public Power District plant, at a conference held to define issues that will be discussed at a hearing in Omaha May 15.

Richard Dinsmore, attorney for Citizens for Survival, noted that OPPD directors last week authorized major revisions to be made at the Fort Calhoun plant.

The work involves modifications to steam lines and to several areas of the plant aimed at meeting safety requirements of the AEC. OPPD directors authorized spending up to $500,000 for initial work on the modifications.

The May 15 hearing before the AEC board will deal with what OPPD is doing to solve the steam line break problem and with what steps the district has taken to solve a fuel problem.

Dinsmore said if construction is allowed to proceed "it would further complicate and enlarge the problems that presently exist. Further, it would be a needless and wasteful expense of the taxpayers' money to have a program of reconstruction when in fact this board may order that other construction be performed."

John Farmakides, chairman of the three-man AEC panel, said his board may not have jurisdiction to act on such a request but would take the issue under advisement.

The hearing starting next Tuesday is an extension of a hearing conducted by the board last December and January. Citizens for Survival had raised questions about possible effects on health and the environment from radiation emissions, heated water discharges, sewage system and the emergency core cooling system at the plant.

Since those hearings, negotia-

Shotgun Blast Injures Man

A Lincoln man was listed in good condition with a gunshot wound in Lincoln General Hospital Tuesday night, police said.

John D. Hall, 29, of 357 Gaslight Lane, was visiting at 1226 Belmont when he shot himself in the upper portion of the right arm with a .410 shotgun, police said.

tions among the AEC, OPPD and Citizens for Survival have resulted in settlement of some issues.

However, OPPD attorney Harry Voigt said Tuesday that following a meeting Monday with Citizens for Survival he felt that further negotiations would be useless.

Dinsmore accused Voigt and OPPD of refusing to bargain in good faith.

After next week's hearing, Farmakides said, it may be another 60 days before the board issues its finding in the case.

Meanwhile, OPPD under a negotiated agreement will be permitted to test and operate the plant at up to five per cent of its capacity as soon as AEC officials make a final inspection at the plant.

Two Skylab Countdowns Start Today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Twin countdowns start Wednesday morning as workers prepare for the launches next week of Skylab, the nation's first space station and of the three-man crew which will live aboard the orbiting laboratory for 28 days.

The space station, a 118-foot craft packed with scientific experiments, is scheduled for launch Monday. A powerful Saturn 5 rocket will drill it into a 270-mile-high orbit of the earth.

On Tuesday, astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin will ride a Saturn 1B rocket into space. They'll rendezvous and dock with the unmanned Skylab seven hours later and move into the space station the next day.

The lengthy twin countdowns begin at 2 a.m. as power is allowed to surge into the Saturn 5 rocket, the same type of booster used to send men to the moon. Six hours later, the Saturn 1B is powered up.

Most of Tuesday will be spent on communications checks and a monitoring of the hydrogen-oxygen propellant systems which guide the rockets.

The Skylab 1 crew continues last-minute preparations for their mission at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

Warning Given On Resources

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Geological Survey warned Tuesday that the nation and the world must start figuring out whether they have enough resources to keep an expanding civilization going.

In a 722-page analysis of U.S. mineral supplies and demand, the Geological Survey gave the first official support to the controversial theory that civilization could collapse if population growth and production are allowed to overburden the world's resources.

Director V. E. McKelvey expressed optimism that the world can develop adequate resources to create and maintain high standards of living for thousands of years.

But McKelvey called for a thorough study of resource adequacy "simply because the stakes have become so high."

McKelvey wrote: "If resource adequacy cannot be assured into the far-distant future, a major reorientation of our philosophy, goals and way of life will be necessary."

"And if we do need to revert to a low resource-consuming economy, we will have to begin the process as quickly as possible in order to avoid chaos and catastrophe."

The Geological Survey study showed that, out of 26 major minerals, the United States supplies of 14 would last no more than 30 to 50 years.

In some cases, U.S. supplies could meet as little as 10 per cent of expected needs, or even less.

The nation already depends on foreign imports for large fractions of its raw materials.

Marijuana Used At Camp David, Md.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon said Tuesday that 28 Marines and 18 Navy personnel have been taken off duty at Camp David, Md., President Nixon's mountain retreat, following an investigation into alleged marijuana use.

"Some of the personnel transferred admitted use of marijuana at some time during their assignment," the Defense Department said. "Others were either suspected of use or provided information used during the investigation."

The servicemen were assigned to the Navy Support Activity at Thurmont, Md. It is the unit responsible for maintenance and security at the mountain retreat.

Japanese Travel

Tokyo — More than 1.2 million Japanese traveled abroad in 1971, a ninefold increase over 1961.

which has been used by several presidents.

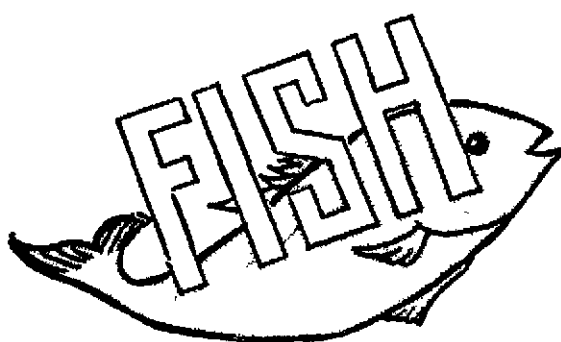

"Because of the sensitivity of the assignment and the special clearance procedures followed in the selection of personnel for assignment to the facility, all personnel involved in any way were transferred," the department said.

It related that the situation was brought to the attention of the commanding officer, Lt. Cmdr. David B. Miller, on April 27 by personnel who had observed what they believed was use of marijuana. Miller then began his own informal investigation.

Woman Trapped 9 Hours After I-80 Wreck In Iowa

Des Moines, Iowa (AP)—Sandy Hovind might as well have been on the moon for all her efforts at rescue recently after her car crashed on Interstate 80 near Adair.

The Papillion, Neb., woman said she fell asleep at the wheel of her small foreign car last Wednesday and it plunged off the roadway. The wrecked auto—with Mrs. Hovind lodged in the back seat—came to rest behind an overpass support.

No one saw the car for nine long hours.

"I totaled the car, broke my leg, bashed my eye pretty good," she said in an interview Tuesday.

Efforts to secure help were to no avail for many hours.

"I slept as much as I was able and when I was awake, I did a stupid thing: I hollered for people — people I knew and then just nobody — just hollered 'help' and was scared because I could feel that my face was full of blood."

The 24-year-old instructor in the use of phototypesetting equipment said she "tried to get out of the car and couldn't. I tried to honk the horn and it wasn't working."

Through it all was the frustrating hum of traffic 30-40 feet away on the interstate and the overpass beneath which her car rested.

"Nobody could hear me or see me."

She said she had an appointment here for last Thursday morning and "I knew I'd have to wait until they missed me there."

Mrs. Hovind's car was visible only from a little-traveled side road.

After a chilly night, she said, "a beautiful man named Keith Egger of Stuart spotted me. He came over and hollered in at me. It scared him to death when he realized I was still alive."

She said there were "some highway men working practically above me on the overpass so he went up and got them and they called the rescue."

After treatment at a hospital in Dexter, Mrs. Hovind was transferred to Iowa Methodist Hospital here.

"I was up yesterday for awhile and they'll get me up today for awhile — just sitting up," she said.

She said a homecoming is planned in Papillion by her husband, Darryl, a carpenter, and the couple's two children.

Body Found In River

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The body of a man found in the Missouri River Tuesday has been identified as Joseph Armstrong, 51, of Omaha.

Omaha police said Armstrong had been missing since April 29.

His body was pulled from the river Tuesday by a Douglas County Sheriff's Department rescue boat about two miles below a cement plant adjacent to Eppley Airfield, where it had been sighted.

Cause of death has not been established, but police said there was no indication of foul play.

Dr. Gray Honored By Optometrists

Grand Island — Dr. Charles Gray of Columbus was named "Optometrist of the Year" here Tuesday night at the annual banquet of the Nebraska Optometric Association. The optometrists are holding their annual convention in Grand Island this week. Dr. Gray, 1972-73 president of the state optometrists, was cited for "being one of the most dedicated, imaginative presidents in the association's history."

Also honored at the banquet was Bob Schnuelle of Grand Island, operations manager of KGIN-TV and veteran broadcaster, who received an "Eyes on Nebraska" award from the optometrists. Schnuelle was the banquet's featured speaker.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wear Allowance
42,000 miles (Projected on 40,000 miles)	10.00
39 months	8.00
45 months	13.00
40 months	10.00
39 months	8.00
36 months	6.00
33 months	5.00
30 months	4.00
24 months	3.00
18 months	2.00

Tread Wear Expectancy offer does not apply to tires used commercially.

- 5-rib tread design for good handling
- A dependable service tire backed with Wards 18-month tread wear expectancy

Land, Water Plan OK'd By Lower Elkhorn NRD

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP)—The Lower Elkhorn Natural Resources District board has allocated $200,000 annually to fund a land and water assistance program in the 13-county area it serves.

The program is the first of its kind to use local tax funds for the development and conservation of natural resources of an area, according to Steve Oltmans, general manager.

The program replaces the federal Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) which was terminated by the government last December.

Tax money from a one-half mill levy will be used for multi-purpose dams, terraces, livestock waste control systems, diversions, grass seeding, road structures and park and recreational facilities, Oltmans said.

He said the program will be watched closely throughout the state and nation, because to his knowledge, it is the first program of its type to be initiated.

The program is available to landowners, cities and counties in the district.

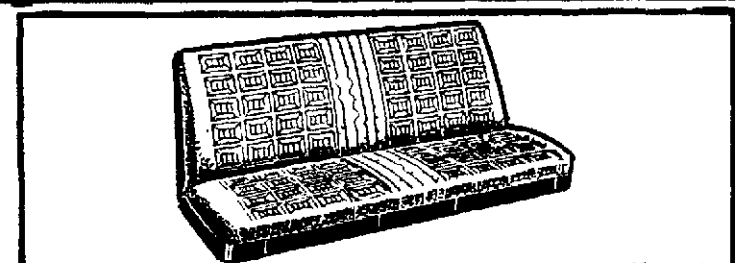

Triangular Tower

Mulhouse, France (AP)—The new 370-foot Tower of Europe is advertised as the tallest private building in the region of Alsace. Emile Muller, mayor of Mulhouse, said the triangular tower with a revolving restaurant on top is "a demonstration of Mulhouse's faith in a united Europe."

Jeffries Keys Hopes For Mt. Michael Club

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

For high school coaches, district track meets are like crossword puzzles.

Everything's laid out in front of them. The answers are there. Except you don't really know if you're right until the end.

Every coach plays the game of where to put who. Elkhorn Mt. Michael's Jim Kane is no exception.

But, if he can fit the pieces together, it may mean a state championship. Right now those chances hinge, in large part, on Conroy Jeffries.

"It's one of the hardest decisions for me to make," Kane says, in discussing where to put Jeffries in Class C-2 district competition at North Bend Thursday.

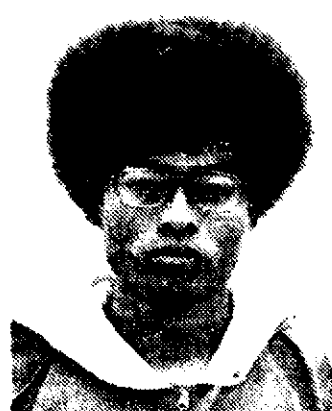

The Mt. Michael standout, despite poor weather all spring, has recorded times under existing state Class C district records.

He's run a 1:58.1 in the 880, a 59.5 in the 440, that's equal to the state Class C district record.

Kane indicated Jeffries will compete in the 220, 440, 880 and mile relay.

"We haven't run him much in the 220 this year," the Mt. Michael coach points out. "Few people remember, but he only missed the gold medal in the 220 by a tenth of a second last year."

Mt. Michael also has a state-leading 2-mile relay team capable of running 8:20 or 8:21 without Jeffries, according to Kane.

"Conroy ran that 49.9 in 53 degree weather on Schuyler's cinder track," adds Kane. "His potential is unlimited."

"A Class C school gets an athlete like him once every 30 or 40 years," says the Mt. Michael coach. "With good weather and good competition at state, who knows how fast he'll run?"

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
